AMERICAN READY TO PAY $100

The AMERICAN today offers a reward of $100 for information, furnished to the AMERICAN, which will result in the arrest and conviction of the firebug who has set at least eight fires in Dorchester in the last six months.

The fires have resulted in a total loss estimated by the police at $26,000. In several cases there were extremely narrow escapes from death; in one fire over sixty people fled to the street in their night clothing.

Some twelve houses have been destroyed by fires set by this firebug, and the Dorchester residential district has been saved only by the most vigorous work on the part of the firemen.

Therefore, in the hope of assisting the police in ridding the Dorchester section of the menace of incendiarism, the AMERICAN offers the reward of $100 for information, furnished to the AMERICAN, which will result in the arrest and conviction of the firebug.

Those who have worked on the case believe the firebug is thoroughly familiar with the district. They admit he is remarkably skillful in his operations. In the case of the last fire, on Holmes avenue and Hamilton street, Patrolman John Griffin inspected the new building where the fire started barely half an hour before the fire was discovered.

Therefore the incendiary must have done his work and escaped a few minutes after Patrolman Griffin departed and before Joseph J. Ecker of No. 133 Holmes avenue discovered the blaze.

Only the fact that Mr. Ecker's child

Swoboda Cleared of All Spy Charges

By International News Service.

PARIS, Sept. 29.—Raymond Swoboda, who claims he is an American citizen, and who has been in a French prison for many months, held as a spy for Germany, was cleared of this accusation in an official report submitted today. It was announced that Swoboda would be freed from Prison as soon as the report had been indorsed.

Swoboda was arrested after the fire on the liner La Touraine on which he was traveling from the United States to France.

Call Off Prince as Bulgaria Army Head

ATHENS, Sept. 29.—Private advices from Sofia report that the appointment of Crown Prince Borus as commander-in-chief of the Bulgarian army has been cancelled and that numerous German officers, who had arrived there to assist the Bulgarian general staff in drafting plans for an attack on Servia, will return to Berlin. Boris has long been known as an opponent of Russia.

CONSTANTINOPLE, via Berlin, Sept. 29.—The Turkish War Office announced today that only unimportant skirmishes occurred yesterday on the Dardanelles front.

$100 REWARD

The AMERICAN will pay One Hundred Dollars reward for information furnished to the AMERICAN which will result in the arrest and conviction of the so-called Dorchester "firebug."

This person has already set at least eight fires in Dorchester within the past six months, two of which resulted in the destruction of thousands of dollars worth of property during the past three weeks.

Persons who have information should communicate at once with the City Editor of the AMERICAN (telephone Main 5180). All information will be held in the strictest confidence.

GIRL IS STORM OF KILLED CAR FARE IN CAFE PROTEST

Arrangements are today being made for the shipment here of the body of Mrs. May Whitney, twenty-four, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Duane T. Whitney, No. 24 Pinckney street, Somerville, who was shot dead yesterday afternoon in a Chicago cafe by Washington Irving Morley, son of a wealthy Kansas City contractor, who is said to have been infatuated with the woman.

Morley shot Mrs. Whitney in the head and then sent a bullet into his own brain. Both victims of the tragedy died almost instantly.

According to Mrs. Whitney's father she was married about four years ago. She then went west with her husband, from whom she is said to have soon separated.

She had been employed for the past several months as pianist in the cafe where the shooting occured. Morley was a partner in an express business.

The tragedy ended a quarrel between the couple over Morley's financial troubles. It occurred just after the couple had dined together in the cafe.

The cafe where the shooting occurred is kept by Philip Spangenberger at No. 744 North Clark street. Morley was in financial troubles and the police were looking for him for passing worthless checks. She had reproached him for his actions, and he came to the cafe, where she was pianist. Letters in Morley's pocket show that he deliberately planned the double shooting.

Today's Chicago dispatches relate that Morley found her at the piano and invited her to dine with him. During the meal they indulged in a heated argument. As they withdrew from the table Morley stepped to the door and Mrs. Whitney walked the length of the room with him. Another argument followed, and Morley flashed a revolver from his coat pocket and, placing it to the temple of the flirt, fired one shot. She died in the ambulance on the way to the hospital. Morley, as quickly, placed the weapon to his own head and discharged a bullet into his brain.

The dead girl was married at the age of eighteen to a traveling salesman working for a Boston firm. Their married life was not happy, and was of short duration. The girl left for the West after separating from her husband.

The girl's father refuses to disclose the name of his daughter's husband. He was not sure whether his daughter obtained a divorce, but thought she brought the action. An investigation of the records at Somerville City Hall failed to reveal the fact that a license had been taken out there by the young woman.

May Whitney was born in Somerville and was graduated from the Bell Grammar School. Her parents lived there at No. 4 Putnam street. The girl went one year to high school and then ran away from home.

The greatest storm of protest in the history of Massachusetts railways has been launched against the proposed boost in fares by the Bay State Street Railway Company.

Secretary Andrew A. Highlands of the Public Service Commission said today that a protest of some form has been received from every city and town in which the Bay State operates in this State. So great is the number of protests that Secretary Highlands has set aside a special set of files in which to record them.

The records at the Public Service Commission show today that the letters of remonstrance have come not only from individual citizens, but from City Councils and active trade organizations in every corner of the State.

The fight against the fare boosts is expected by the Commission to be the most bitter contest in years. The records on file today show that the following action has been publicly taken, with other cities and towns to be heard from:

UNNECESSARY HARDSHIP.

Beverly—Board of Aldermen adopts resolutions of protests, condemning proposed increase as "an unnecessary hardship," and instructs the Mayor and City Solicitor to appear at the public hearing to protest.

Essex County Associate Boards of Trades ask for public hearing in which to protest.

Gloucester—Municipal Council votes against increase; Gloucester Board of Trade asks for special hearing to present Gloucester's protest; school teachers protest against the abolition of transfer privileges.

Lawrence—City Council adopts resolutions of protest and instructs city solicitor to appear in person to protest; Prospect Hill Improvement Society adopts resolution of protest.

Lynn—City Council votes against fare increases and instructs City Solicitor to act; Lynn Chamber of Commerce files letter of protest; United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners adopts resolutions opposing higher fares.

Malden—Olive Avenue Improvement Association votes in protest.

Melrose—Mayor Charles H. Adams requests opportunity to be heard in protest.

Peabody—Selectmen instruct Town Counsel to protest.

Revere—City Government instructs City Solicitor to protest.

Rockport—Selectmen write letter of protest.

Salem—Mayor O'Keefe asks for

LANDING IN SALONICA REPORTED

BERLIN, Sept. 29 (by wireless).—A dispatch from Buda Pest states that British and French troops who will aid Servia have been landed at Fort Kostchris (Katerina), near Salonika.

Katerina is on Greek territory on the west side of the gulf of Salonika. This report, if true, means that Greece has definitely thrown in its lot on the side of the Allies and has committed a warlike act, if the Teutons choose to consider it as such. The landing of troops of the Allies on Grecian soil with the permission or assistance of Greece would be viewed as an unfriendly act in Berlin.

BERLIN, Sept. 29 (by wireless).—A Constantinople dispatch to the Overseas News Agency reports that a British transport carrying troops from India was sunk by the Mohammedan slingsr. Only a few men of the crew escaped.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—From the official communications issued by Paris and Berlin, it appears that the French troops are resting on their arms after their thrust at the German lines, while the Germans are everywhere cannonading and counter attacking in a furious effort to regain lost ground.

The French claim no new gains of territory except at one point in the Artois. Berlin claims to have recaptured part of the lost territory near Loos. The battle has become a duel of the big guns.

The German losses, according to a French official statement, exceed 120,000 men, or three army corps.

KAISER AT THE FRONT.

The Kaiser, rushed west on a special train, has reached the front in Flanders, according to one report.

The British have penetrated the second line of trenches at Loos and were attacking the third line at the time the last official statement was issued by Sir John French.

No official figures on the allied losses are available. The Germans claim to have taken prisoner 128 British officers and 3,858 men besides the French captured.

The French claim more than 22,000 prisoners and seventy-nine guns. The official statement from Paris reads as follows:

"In Champagne the conflict continues without cessation on all the fronts. In the region to the north of Massiges some new German groups surrendered. Their total has reached one thousand.

"In that sector alone in the course of the night there was no important action. On the rest of the front the

"The little World's Series" is on at Brave Field today, with Captain Johnny Evers of the 1914 Champions leading his men full tilt against Pat Moran's pace-setting Phillies, in an attempt to take four straight and make a last ditch, long-odds fight to emulate the Cubs of 1908 and land first in the Tener race by a fraction.

Tremendous interest attaches to today's doings. The Phillies come here with their task for the year almost complete, but they must take one game from the Braves to be safe.

If the Braves play as they did when they entertained the Morans at Fenway Park earlier in the season, before they moved to their sumptuous new home, Pat Moran's proud smile will disappear entirely. In that series the Braves took four out of five. They are clamoring to repeat in the last big series of the year Boston folk will see before the World's Show.

The Braves want to show all the "fans" that, whatever the run of "breaks" has been for the year, they are playing for the outside chance at the $3,000 or so per man that attaches to all eligibles in the World's Series.

"We must win today to stay in the race," is the main idea of Boss Stallings and his crew as the big clash begins. If the Braves lose the opener they are as well as done for, but if they win they can keep fighting gamely on, day by day.

Just as if it was a World's Series game, Stallings will send "Pordham Dick" Rudolph, his official starter of series, after the all-important game. "Dick" came home early from the road trip and is in prime condition to pitch the game of his life.

Opposed to Rudolph will be Alexander the Great, Moran's reliance in all his baseball hopes of the year. That it will be a pitching duel to the death goes without saying.

"Pat Moran Day" will be a feature of the opening of the series. The native son of Pitchburg will be honored by the residents of that city and all the surrounding burghs in that part of the State. Two trainloads of "fans," some 2,000 in all, will come hither to pay tribute to the much-lauded manager of the Phillies. They will have a band and sit in two reserved sections of the grandstand.

In the evening Governor Walsh, who also plans to see the game, will give a dinner in honor of Moran.

The Braves had an eye out yesterday afternoon for the earliest reports on the Phillies-Robins clash in Brooklyn, and were saddened by the triumph of the leaders.

NIEHOFF

Perhaps no comparison between regular players on the rival teams in this world's championship series shows more superiority one over the other than does Jack Barry over Niehoff. It is the wily, foxy veteran, hardened in hundreds of battles, brainy and a born leader, against an ordinary ball player without great experience who is hustling, doing just the best he can, and improving.

It is Niehoff's hard luck to be brought up in comparison with one of the greatest ball players of the era, and if friends of Niehoff are dissatisfied with the valuation placed upon him in this series they should not be, for being rated that close in ability to Jack Barry is indeed a compliment.

Barry has faults. He is not a heavy hitter; he is a bit strange as a second baseman because he has played short for many years and it has been hard for him to change back to the different angle of making throws. It was Barry who won the American League pennant for Boston just as he would have won it for either Detroit or for Chicago had either of those teams been fortunate enough to secure him. He rallied the Red Sox at a stage of the season when they were going to pieces just as surely as any team ever went to pieces

Cambridge Field Offer for Big Football Game

Mayor Timothy W. Good of Cambridge today offered Graduate Manager Fred W. Moore of the Harvard Athletic Association the use of Russell Field, Cambridge, for the Harvard-Yale game, if it is found impossible to hold the game in the Stadium.

Russell Field has a concrete stand that seats 15,000, and ample room for the erection of wooden stands to seat any number up to 50,000.

Mayor Good—although he is a brother-in-law of Fred Daly, the former Yale captain—is anxious to help Harvard in any possible way, and is willing that Harvard erect as many wooden stands as it wishes on Russell Field.

Manager Moore claims that to erect stands in the open end of the Stadium will not violate any Boston ordinance.

WIDOW TO STAND DEATH TRIAL

PROVIDENCE, Sept. 27.—Mrs. Elizabeth F. Mohr was indicted by the Providence Grand Jury today for murder in conspiring to secure the death of her husband, Dr. C. Franklin Mohr, who was fatally shot on August 31.

Dr. Mohr was shot as he was being driven with Miss Emily Burger, his private secretary, from this city to his Summer estate near Newport. The car was driven by George W. Healis, the physician's chauffeur.

Dr. Mohr died from his wounds. Miss Burger was severely wounded. The police charged the murder to Mrs. Mohr and three negroes, saying that Mrs. Mohr incited the colored men to commit the crime.

The indictment also charges Mrs. Mohr with assault with intent to kill upon Miss Burger.

Indictments were also returned today against the three colored men, charging them with the murder of Dr. Mohr and with assault with intent to kill upon Miss Burger.

The colored men are Healis, the chauffeur; Cecil Victor Brown, former hostler of Dr. Mohr, and Henry Spellman, Brown's half-brother.

The police have maintained that Healis, on a promise of $2,000 from Mrs. Mohr, stopped the doctor's automobile that night at a place previously agreed upon.

Brown, the police say, shot and fatally wounded Dr. Mohr on a promise of $2,000 from Mrs. Mohr.

Spellman, according to the police, was promised $1,000 by Mrs. Mohr and he also shot and wounded Miss Burger.

The doctor's car was stopped by Chauffeur Healis in the village of Nayatt, nine miles out of here on the road to the Bristol ferry.

GREATEST BATTLE OF WAR ON FRENCH FRONT RAGING AS ALLIES PUSH DRIVE

enamy violently cannonaded our trenches to the north and to the south of the Aisne, in the region of the St. Mard Forest, of Troyon and of Vailly. We replied energetically.

"The official reports now arriving permit a more complete measure every day of the success won by our offensive in Champagne, combined with that of the allied troops in the Artois district.

"The Germans not only have been compelled to abandon on an extended front powerful entrenched positions on which they had been ordered to resist to the end, but have also suffered losses in killed, wounded and missing the total of which exceeds the effective forces of three army corps (120,000 men).

23,000 PRISONERS.

"The number of prisoners taken by us is now more than 23,000. The number of guns brought to the rear is 79.

"17,058 prisoners and 316 officers have passed through Chalons to entrain for internment camps.

"The cleaning up of the battlefield is in progress and we are making a collection of the arms of all kinds and of the field and trench material which the enemy was forced to give up to us.

"In the Artois district the progress reported yesterday to the east of Souches continued during the afternoon and during the night. We reached after a stubborn conflict Hill No. 140, the highest point of the Vimy hills, and the orchards to the south thereof. The number of wounded prisoners taken in the course of these actions is more than 200, most of them belonging to two divisions of the Prussian guards."

Berlin claims that furious attacks against the British forces north of Arras are proceeding succesfully. Reinforcements have strengthened the German line there. The Teutonic line, according to the official wireless report, is "holding like a stone wall," but it is admitted that at some points, "to avoid unnecessary loss of life from the British and French artillery," the German forces were withdrawn to new lines of entrenchments.

BEGIN COUNTER ATTACKS.

Counter attacks, according to Berlin, have been begun all along the line; and the German artillery has opened an effective reply to the fire of the French and British guns.

The German trenches lost to the British near Loos were several hundred yards in length and very strongly organized, according to official advices from the British headquarters. It is becoming possible to estimate the importance of the battle. It is believed as high as half a million men have been killed, wounded or captured during the past week, when all the battle fronts—France, Belgium, Russia, the Dardanelles and the Alps—are considered.

A fourth of this number are estimated to have been killed.

Of the two battles waged in France, that in Champagne was far the fiercest and bigger. Joffre himself conducted the advance, not as a picturesque general on a white charger, but sitting attentively at a kitchen table in a wine shop behind the lines, while at his sides, with telephone receivers attached to their ears, shouted the latest developments of the various attacking columns.

A staff officer states that General Joffre sat impassively with eyes glued on a huge map, making no comments but giving concise orders in a quiet and unemotional manner.

LEAP FROM TRENCHES.

For twenty-four hours Joffre did not interrupt his close study of the situation, even for a sandwich. It was only when he was satisfied with each achievement that he smilingly remarked:

"Well, that's done; now for a snack."

After a perfunctory meal, he slept four hours.

Meanwhile, a few miles distant, a scene worthy of Dante's Inferno was being enacted. In the dead of night scores of thousands of blue-clad French infantry leaped out of their trenches at the word of command and dashed across the ground, turned up like a plowed field by shells.

What the German saw from his shell-battered trench when the rocket's starlight illuminated the grim spectacle was the gleaming point of a fixed bayonet handled by an infuriated soldier wearing an anti-gas mask, which gave him the appearance of a demon.

NO QUARTER GIVEN.

From a distance the battle field formed a phantasmagorical spectacle.

Lit by greenish lights, whose rays pierced the dense clouds of smoke and poison gases, the troops were seen swaying in a titanic struggle wherein no quarter was given or asked. All around flames leaped from concealed batteries, belching high explosives and shrapnel.

The victory, which produced the greatest number of prisoners the allies have yet gained in a single action, was won in true Hindenburg manner. The attacking forces were divided into three columns.

While the right and left wings swept forward, the centre body remained quiescent till the advance on the flanks began to converge and act as powerful pincers. Then the centre delivered the last blow, netting regiment after regiment.

One of the most terrible features of the battle was the number of German artillery men driven mad by the terrible cannonade.

The French wounded brought to Paris say that during the advance they came upon groups huddled round their guns, which they made no effort to serve. Some were dumb, the teeth of others chattered, whilst still others screamed wildly.

"These poor wretches," said one soldier, "were quite harmless, gone stark mad."

The advance might have gone further but for the fact that the Germans had constructed a huge series of polygonal fortifications as a second line of defence, which the French guns had not played upon. A study of the map, however, shows it was distinctly an artillery victory for the French. They literally blasted forty kilometers.

Between the German first and second lines, so great was the destruction, even positions protected by converging gunfire were carried without extraordinary effort. However strong the second network of German defences the French are prepared to employ the necessary weight of metal to flatten them out as they did the first line.

This, in fact, is what is now going on in Champagne, but it is probable several days must elapse before the positions can again be stormed.

CROWN PRINCE CHECKED.

A few miles farther east the Crown Prince failed in what is described here as a dynastic offensive designed to impress the German empire with the Hohenzollerns' military qualities. He threw 100,000 men against strongly defended trenches along the wild Argonne hills and, although for a time his densely formed battalions rushed some advanced posts, the French artillery, which had been battering his new lines, gained the upper hand and the infantry was able to drive the German legion back.

This action was held to confirm an impression, derived from the Champagne and Arras battles, that the great munitions efforts of the allies in the past Summer have finally given them the superiority necessary to conduct a general offensive.

EYE WITNESS TELLS OF FRANCO-BRITISH DRIVE SEEN FROM LA BASSEE

By JOHN BUCHAN

Military Expert of the London Times and Official British War Historian.

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS, Sept. 29.—Monday from a hillock in the rear of the British line I watched the gun flashes at La Bassee (the key to Lille) to the south of Souches. Both the French and British were closely engaged, the former against the high ground east of Givenchy called the plateau of Vimy, the latter on a front from the west of Haisnes to Hill 70 at the east of Loos, where the fighting is still proceeding.

We have often been told that the German lines to the west are wearing thin. The allies are attacking all along the front to prevent the thin part of the German front from being strengthened from elsewhere. The plan so far looks like succeeding.

RESERVES INSUFFICIENT.

Take what happened in Artois on Saturday, the day of the British drive. The French on our right had by desperate fighting taken the last trench of "the Labyrinth." They also took the Cemetery House, but could make no impression on Souches village.

On Sunday German reserves were engaged in a counter attack on the British position. As a result the French took Souches village with little loss and advanced through the wood to a point close to Givenchy and Gobelle. Their right wing won a position north of Thelus.

The Germans would appear to have insufficient reserves to meet the attacks on two adjoining sections at the same time. If this conclusion is correct it encourages the allies to hope for the best.

The great movement in Champagne has an immense strategic significance obvious to any one who looks carefully at a map of the western front.

BRITISH MAKE GAINS.

The general bombardment which has continued for some weeks was still in progress Friday, the Germans replying. There was a violent cannonade of Artois and "the dust heap" that was once Ypres was shelled. Most of the day the adjacent roads were sprayed with shrapnel. Everywhere one found an atmosphere of tension and expectancy.

Just before midnight the great guns began. They were thirty miles off and sounded like the roll of giant guns. There was no cessation, but sometimes a crescendo when it had the volume of thunder near at hand. It seemed to last all night, and about 4 o'clock in the morning died out. For two hours there was a lull, and presently the news began to come in. Every section of the British line was engaged, but two chief advances were Hooge and beyond Vermilles.

At Hooge the action of August 6 had given the British a crater north of the Menin road, but the Germans held Bellewaarde lake at Chateau and south of the road they had an awkward fort at the corner of Sanctuary wood, which in August enfiladed and the British right.

At 6 o'clock the British fired a mine south of the road and carried the front trenches and took the Sanctuary wood fortress, but were unable to hold Bellewaarde lake beyond the afternoon.

But the big struggle was north of Lens. The country is a dead flat plain, seamed with roads and studded with collieries and clusters of little red houses.

LOOS FALLS EASILY.

Saturday morning the British assaulted the front of Hulluch and Loos while the German troops north of the canal were also attacked to divert the German reinforcements. Early in the morning the British took Loos and pressed eastward towards St. Augusta, a northern suburb of Lens.

Between St. Augusta and Lens is a hillock of seventy metres, a striking rise, but a position of vital importance in this flat country.

By evening the British had Hill No.70 and were in the western suburbs of Hulluch. It was the most considerable British advance since the war of entrenchment began, for the British progressed two and a half miles on a front of five miles.

South of us the French were busy in their old cockpit, but the line of Souches to the Labyrinth was desperately strong and no great advance was possible as that of the British at Loos. They won the first trenches and held them, but by Saturday they had still heavy defences to overcome.

Report Heavy German Losses Near Dvinsk

By International News Service.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 29.—German aviators dropped bombs on Dvinsk Tuesday, causing fires in several places and killing a number of soldiers, according to reports received by the War Office today. The raid was a complete failure from a military viewpoint, however, none of the important defences being materially damaged.

One of the German aeroplanes was shot down, both the observer and pilot being killed.

The conflict on the Dvinsk front continues without interruption. Night and day the German artillery is hammering away at the Russian trenching southwest of the city.

According to the Army Messengor, the situation at Dvinsk is similar to that at Warsaw when the Germans made their frontal attacks. As at the Polish fortress, the Kaiser's troops have suffered terrific losses at Dvinsk, 7,000 dead having been counted on a front of half a mile.

Field Marshal von Mackensen's army, which was defeated by General Evert's left wing on the Ogiuski Canal, has again resumed operations, making several attacks northeast of Pinsk.

THOUSANDS SEE MEN OF '61 IN 'LAST GRAND REVIEW' AT CAPITAL

By W. B. HASSETT,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—All that is left of the Grand Army of the Republic—survivors of the enfilade of shot and shell on the battlefield and conquerors of the ravages of time—marched up Pennsylvania avenue here this morning and reproduced the "Grand Review" in fifty years ago. Flanked by the cheering thousands who crowded the sidewalks, and saluted by the President of the United States, they were greeted as the heroes of the greatest orls lathis country ever faced.

They marched under a cloudless sy, the white sunlight of late September emphasizing the silver of their hair. From every flagstaff and from all the windows of the buildings along the line of march the Stars and Stripes floated in the slow breeze.

DEATH OF SECTIONALISM.

Bands from every section of the country played the airs to whose enthusiastic strain these men had made their historic charges fifty and more years ago.

Confederate soldiers, wearing the uniform of the gray, occupied seats of honor on the reviewing stand in front of the White House—and the rebel yell rang out again and again, expressing the death of sectionalism and the ternity of glory won by the warriors under fire.

As Lieutenant-General Nelson A. Miles, U. S. A., retired, leading the line of men who had heard Lincoln and his successor, President Johnson, thank them for their valor, rode up the avenue from the peace monument past the White House, the sidewalks became a surging sea of fluttering handkerchiefs and waving hats. The variously colored gowns of the women, the brilliant sunlight and the riot of little flags were the stage-setting of what was in many ways the most remarkable parade of the Grand Army.

Never was enthusiasm so unbounded. Never did the country, speaking through the thousands of visitors to the city, give the line of blue such expression of gratitude and praise.

BOWED BY WEIGHT OF YEARS.

The review was of more solemn impressiveness as all realized that this venerable legion was passing over the historic thoroughfare for the last time.

It was a line in which many shoulders were bowed and many feet half shackled by the weight of years. But everywhere there was the spirit of youth. The passage of time could not touch the souls of the men who had younger generation saw in the marchers only the picture of patriotism and the figures of fame.

The floating banners, the waving plumes and the roll of drums—all the pomp of war—were but symbols of the fact that men live by their deeds and that the deeds of these were deathless.

DORCHESTER GIRL ELOPES WITH SON OF PROFESSOR

Mrs. Harold Reed Ripley, formerly Miss Mary Victoria Macauley,

A romance of several months' duration in which Miss Mary Victoria Macauley, eighteen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis L. Macauley of No. 17 Carver street, Dorchester, and Harold Reed Ripley, twenty-one, son of Mrs. and Professor John H. Ripley of No. 1862 Beacon street, Brookline, figured, culminated Monday night when the young couple eloped in an auto and were married by the Rev. Steven C. Lang in Quincy.

They intended to keep the marriage a secret and would have been probably successful but a co-worker of the bride, who lives in Quincy, happened along near the Rev. Lang's home when the couple were entering. When the bride returned to work today she was confronted by several chums and admitted that she and Harold were married.

It was learned from friends that the romance started about a year ago when the former Miss Macauley, who is an accomplished singer, started to take vocal lessons from the father of the groom. Mrs. Ripley is a stenographer at No. 31 Beach street, while her husband is an employe of the Cosmopolitan Trust Company.

U. S. SOLDIER IS BEHEADED BY MEXICANS

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., Sept. 29.—Private Richard J. Johnson, Troop B, Twelfth United States Cavalry, who disappeared after a battle between American troops and Mexican raiders near Progreso, Texas, last Friday, was taken prisoner by the raiders into Mexico, and after being tortured was beheaded and his body thrown into the Rio Grande. His head and ears were publicly displayed in Concepcion, Mexico, as proof of the Mexicans' victory over American soldiers.

The story of Johnson's fate was extracted by third degree methods from a Mexican prisoner of American troops at Pharr, Texas, across the river from Concepcion.

Military authorities at Fort Brown admitted knowledge of the beheading of Johnson, but refused to give details.

Extra editions of newspapers here telling of the crime so infuriated residents of Brownsville that the military authorities had to take steps to protect the homes of peaceful Mexicans.

A force of more than 400 Mexicans is concentrating on the Mexican side of the Rio Grande, opposite Progreso Joaa, according to dispatches to Fort Brown. They have been joined by 200 other Mexicans who had crossed to the American side, near Mercedes, and later returned across the river.

Three hundred United States troops have been rushed to the scene to reinforce the 500 already there. Two platoons of machine guns also are being rushed to Progreso on a special train.

Colonel Blocksom, in command of the troops near Progreso, reports through General Funston, that the bandits seem to constitute an independent band.

"If Carranza does not stop these bandits," telegraphs Colonel Blocksom, "I believe we shall soon be compelled to follow them across."

WOMEN WARNED VOTE MEANS JURY DUTY

LOWELL, Sept. 29.—"Let us not forget that if the Suffragists have their way in Massachusetts, women will be called upon for jury duty."

This was the warning given by ex-Representative John J. Douglass of Boston at the anti-suffrage rally in Lowell which terminated the second day of the anti' State-wide campaign.

"Do you realize what jury duty means?" he continued. "As a lawyer I have participated in cases in which some of the testimony was such as to bring the blush of shame to the cheeks of the most hardened man. As a juror your wife or your daughter might be compelled to listen to such testimony. She might also be compelled to discuss it in all its nauseating details with men she would be careful not to know under other circumstances, behind the locked doors of the jury room through the long hours of the night."

Colonel John P. Irish of California spoke of the way suffrage is working out in his State. He said, in part:

"The law of California, as in the other States, made the husband the legal head of the family, and made him responsible for the support of his wife and children. If, being able-bodied, he failed to support them, the same law penalized him, sent him to jail and compelled him to work on the rock pile, his wages being turned over to his family for their support. This law was wisely conceived to preserve the integrity of the family. Since they secured suffrage, the political women demanded and secured the repeal of this law and its substitution by one making the wife the joint head of the family, but leaving the husband still responsible for the support of the family, with all the former penalties for his failure."

Held in $50,000 "Pirating" of Chaplin Films

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—The antics of Charlie Chaplin yesterday caused the arrest of George Levi, who is in business at No. 145 West Forty-fifth street, as the Chaplin Film Company. As a result of the revelations which led to the arrest of Levi, agents of the Department of Justice hope to make other arrests which will reveal frauds to the extent of $500,000.

During the three months that Levi has operated, government officials told Commissioner Houghton he has made the astounding profit of $50,000 by dealing in pirated films.

The method employed, asserts Assistant District Attorney Contell, was to obtain by subterfuge a standard film for a rental of a day. Before returning the negative a duplicate was made at a cost of two feet for 7 cents. From the duplicate hundreds of positive films were made and then sold at a low cost to moving pictures theatres throughout the country.

The offence, it is charged, is a violation of the copyright law. Levi was held for examination October 12.

BULGARIA NEAR REBELLION, IS ROME REPORT

By International News Service.

PARIS, Sept. 29.—A news agency dispatch received here today states that the Bulgarian Cabinet headed by Premier Radoslavoff has fallen and that King Ferdinand has asked M. Malinoff, a strong supporter of the allies, to form a ministry.

The message attributes Radoslavoff's fall to his efforts to align Bulgaria with Germany, in defiance of popular sentiment.

The news which it conveyed caused a sensation here despite the fact that information which had reached the French government had caused an optimistic feeling for the last two days.

The reported selection of M. Malinoff to premier is taken in French circles as a definite indication that Bulgaria will not support the Teutonic powers, but will at least maintain neutrality in accordance with the pledges which have been sent to all the European chancelleries.

Premier Radoslavoff has been regarded as the strongest statesman of Bulgaria. He reached the climax of his power on July 20, 1913, when he became head of the Cabinet. His ministry was reappointed on January 5, 1914.

In this Radoslavoff also served as Foreign Minister ad interim. The other members reappointed were: Minister of Finance, M. Toncheff; Minister of Justice and Education, M. Pechieff; Minister of War, General Boyadieff; Minister of Commerce, M. Ilikoff; Minister of public Works, M. Dimcheff; Minister of Railways, M. Apostoloff.

Every Man's Hand Against Her!

Nauseated with her drunken husband, hating the immoral marriage forced on her by a harsh uncle more than any risk in life, Susan flees into the night. She is discovered, hiding in the woods, by a young newspaper man.

Affected by her helpless innocence and beauty, Spenser guides her as far as Carrollton. He leaves her at the little hotel with a wallet of money.

Maine Strike Is to Be Continued

LEWISTON, Me., Sept. 29.—A strike of twenty-two loom fixers at the Bates cotton mill, which has been on since June 26, is to be continued until such time as the mill management will treat with the national officers of the Loom Fixers' Union, according to two local officers. The fixers quit work because they were asked to care for eighteen instead of twelve looms at an increased wage of only ninety cents a week.

STEAMER ISABEL BEACHED IN THE SOUND

SOUTH NORWALK, Ct., Sept. 29.—The freighter Isabel, plying between here and New York, did not sink in the Sound last night, as reported by a boatload of the crew, but was run aground at Shippan Point, off Cow Rocks, to prevent it. Captain Howland of the Isabel thinks his steamer hit a submerged wreck.

At the office of the Smith Transportation Company, owners of the vessel, it was believed the boatload of employes who came ashore last night would have to jump into a lifeboat as soon as the Isabel struck and then rowed away without orders.

Captain Rowland and fourteen men remained aboard and worked all night transferring cargo from the hold to the upper decks. A tug has been sent to the Isabel.

SPRINGFIELD, Sept. 29.—One woman was killed instantly and three men were cut and bruised when a five-passenger touring car carrying a wedding party was struck at the East street crossing, Ludlow, by the Athol train.

Mrs. John Weronka of No. 153 State street was killed; Steve Magas received a scalp wound, and Peter Farcanski and Miss Malvord Walinska were badly bruised. Mrs. Weronka's skull was fractured when she struck a cement sidewalk. Her 4-month-old baby, who was with her, escaped injury.

Pillsbury to Run for N. H. Governor

LONDONDERRY, N. H., Sept. 29.—Rosecrans W. Pillsbury, formerly a newspaper publisher in Manchester, announces his candidacy for the Republican nomination for Governor in 1916. Mr. Pillsbury is now engaged in the shoe manufacturing business and in farming.

WILLIAM- SHAW, Prohibition candidate for Governor, who makes final appeal to the Republican party to support the prohibition cause.

SHAW TO RETIRE IF G. O. P. BACKS PROHIBITION

William Shaw, Prohibition candidate for Governor of Massachusetts, has made a final appel to the Republican party of the State to dopt nd advocts the principle of State and national prohibition.

In a letter to the leaders of the party he declares that if his experiences during his campaign of th past three weeks are any indication of the purpose of the people of the State, then th Prohibition movement will this yeard efeat both the dominant parties.

Mr. Shaw asserts the belief, however, that the Republican State ticket can be triumphantly elected this Fall if the party will adopt an unequivocal State and national prohibition plank, and Samuel W. McCall, Republican candidate for Governor, will accept it, in which event Mr. Shaw will withdraw his candidacy and, if his services are desired, campaign for Mr. McCall.

If the Republicans refuse the prohibition issue altogether, then Mr. Shaw asserts that both dominant parties will go down to defeat.

"Your silence on this great question," writes Mr. Shaw, "is interpreted as cowardice, or a secret understanding with the liquor interests. I give you solemn warning that this attitude is resented by a sufficient number of voters to make the election of your candidate impossible."

The Republican party now has the opportunity, Mr. Shaw points out, to redeem its pledge to Abraham Lincoln, to repeal the partnership between the federal government and the liquor interests, and "to lead the nation in another great moral struggle that shall make the Republican party not only worthy of its past, but entitled to the continued confidence and support of our people."

The letter is addressed to Samuel W. McCall, Republican candidate for Governor; Calvin Coolidge, Republican candidate for Lieutenant-Governor; Grafton D. Cushing, chairman of the Republican State Convention; Frederick H. Gillette, chairman of the committee on resolutions of the Republican State Convention, and Edward T. Thurston, chairman of the Republican State Committee.

CALL TREASURER IN B. & M. INQUIRY

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 29.—J. Frank Webster, treasurer of the Concord & Montreal Railroad, was scheduled to be the first witness today at the investigation of the Public Service Commission into railroad expenditures alleged to have been made to influence legislation.

Mr. Webster was to be questioned about the vouchers for $14,350 and for $12,665.75, about which centered the testimony of Benjamin A. Kimball, president of the Concord & Montreal. Mr. Kimball declared that he had personally spent $12,665.75, which was later refunded to him by the Boston & Maine in the B. & M. fight to keep out the Grand Trunk Railroad. How this money was spent or to whom it was paid he declared he could not remember.

BLANKET VOUCHERS.

"I now think," testified Mr. Kimball, "that what was paid to Mr. Weston in the Grand Trunk matter is covered by B. & M. voucher No. 12662, the amount being $14,350, plus the retainer fee of $500. He came to me and got money as he wanted it, apparently beginning about July 28, 1913; and the whole bill ($14,350) was refunded by the B. & M. railroad to the Concord & Montreal railroad July 18, 1913.

"All along since the Grand Trunk fight started and when we knew it was likely to start, I had been doing all I could to defend our property against that danger, and I had paid out comparatively small items of money in its defence. The Concord & Montreal had no money, and I made those expenditures from my own funds and charged them on memoranda.

"It was decided that I should send a voucher through one of our regular attorneys engaged in the Grand Trunk defence—that it would be better to do it that way than personally or as president of the C. & M.—and it would be paid. So I spoke to Mr. Weston, as he was engaged in the Grand Trunk case, explained it to him, and he was willing to sign the voucher and did. I figured up what I had paid out—$12,665.75—and the voucher was made and paid, and I used the money to pay the notes I had given to the bank.

DESTROYED MEMORANDA.

"I don't remember why four vouchers were made, nor can I account for their dates unless something in my memoranda fixed that. I gave the matter of details little attention then, and can recall nothing more of them now.

"The memoranda of my expenditures, which totalled $12,665.75, I destroyed when the matter was closed by my receipt of that sum from the B. & M., and though I have tried, I am unable to recall what the items were, to whom the payments were made, or anything further about them. They were all in connection with the Grand Trunk matter—to help stop that project—and had no relation in any way to legislation. I said I thought that Mr. Weston's services were included in his retainer. That is an error, as his services and expenses were in addition to the retainer fee. All expenditures known to me were made in legitimate and proper ways to serve public interest for the protection of the Boston & Maine railroad and leased lines in New Hampshire against the Grand Trunk road. It was a self-defence measure, not only for the railroads, but also for the savings banks and trusts for minors and incompetents, and for dependent relatives of persons deceased."

"NO FALSE VOUCHERS."

Examined by Attorney John E. Benton for the public service commission, President Kimball said that on certain vouchers made to George A. Weston the money was paid to him and not to Mr. Weston. Mr. Kimball identified four as not having been paid to Mr. Weston.

Mr. Benton—Then it is true that you sent forward from your office vouchers showing $12,665.75 paid to George A. Weston, when in fact it was not—false vouchers, were they not?

President Kimball—Never sent any false vouchers. They might appear so, but it was understood between the president of the Boston & Maine, myself and Mr. Weston. Instead of my signing the voucher Mr. Weston did so. I didn't misstate any facts. We all understood Mr. Weston didn't get any money. I've explained about those vouchers and there it must stand.

Sheriff Kinkead of Strike Fame Loses in New Jersey Primary

By International News Service.

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 29.—The important result of the New Jersey primaries, with a light vote and spirited contests few, was the rout by Naval Officer H. Otto Wittpen, former Mayor of Jersey City; of Sheriff Kinkead, who aspired to be Democratic boss of Hudson County. Wittpen nominated his Assembly and free-holder tickets. Kinkead was the hero of the Standard Oil strike at Bayonne.

The Jim Smith Democratic faction in Essex county led by James Nugent won easily over the Woodrow Wilson league, nominating twelve assembly men and several county officers and Newark city officials.

James G. Blaine's, the "Bully Sunday" candidate for Senator in the Republican primaries of Paterson, was defeated by a narrow margin by Thomas F. McCran. Several assembly candidates who were indorsed by Sunday appeared to have won on the Republican ticket.

PROTEST CUT IN POSTAL MEN'S WAGES

Branch 24, National Association of Letter Carriers, did not close its meeting until midnight, and even after the meeting adjourned a score of members remained in the American House for nearly an hour discussing the cut in the salaries of men in the collection department from $1,200 to $1,000.

Resolutions and information to show why the cut should not be applied in Boston will be sent to the Massachusetts members of both branches of Congress.

There are forty men affected by the cut which has been carried into effect in other parts of the country, and which is now being put into effect in Boston. The rest of the membership of the branch, comprising 1,300 uniformed men in the Boston postal service, are working to prevent what they claim is an unjust action. It was stated at the meeting last night that Postmaster Murray was against the action and was doing what he could to aid the men.

The branch voted to extend the sympathy of the association to Senator Lodge on the death of Mrs. Lodge.

A Great Conference Of Interest to All Tire Users And Dealers

ONCE every year all Firestone salesmen meet at our Akron headquarters.

At our first annual meeting only thirty men were present; this week we'll have over three hundred from all parts of the United States and several foreign countries.

Besides attending the general sessions addressed by Company executives, branch managers and salesmen, every representative will spend hours in the factory studying, in a practical way, the manufacture of Firestone tires. He will actually see our experts building into Firestones the "extras" you have been reading and hearing about; that extra layer of fabric in the five-inch tire; the extra ply in the three-inch; the extra coating of pure gum between the plies, etc. He will see the "inside" reasons why 50 per cent more Firestone dealers were added last year, and why our output was increased 78 per cent.

He will see five great buildings under construction to provide over seven acres of additional floor space which will increase our output of pneumatic tires from 7,500 to 12,000 a day. This increase of 4,500 tires per day is larger than the output of the original new Firestone plant erected on its present site four years ago.

He will rub shoulders with hundreds of men whose interests are kin to his, and from them he will reap a great harvest of valuable and helpful information which he will use to the advantage of customers in his territory.

These days of conference and study represent a large investment, but it produces adequate dividends in better service for tire users the world over. It means a greater, more alert, better informed Firestone organization, and that insures satisfied customers. And there you have the vital reason for it all because—satisfied customers constitute the corner stone of this business.

ARMS BUYING ALLOWED BY TERMS OF LOAN TO ALLIES

George M. Reynolds, president of the Continental & Commercial National Bank of Chicago, says: "I can say that the recent court decision in the packers' case is going to make it harder for Western banks to participate in the foreign loan. The further West one goes the greater is the opposition to the loan. Most of it comes from the savings bank depositors."

By B. C. FORBES.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Official announcement has been made of the terms on which the $500,000,000 five-year Anglo-French first mortgage loan will be issued, namely, a nation-wide syndicate now being formed by J. P. Morgan & Co. and other bankers and banks will buy the whole $500,000,000, bearing 5 per cent. interest at 96, the cost to the borrowers being over 5½ per cent.

This syndicate will offer the bonds to the public at 98, the yield being $ 5 2-3—almost 5½ per cent.

ARMS BUYING ALLOWED.

Cash can be obtained at par (100) at the end of five years, or holders can then exchange the bonds for a 4½ Anglo-French issue repayable in not less than fifteen and not more than twenty-five years thereafter.

Part of the issue will be in $100 ("Baby") bonds, as direct appeal is to be made to small investors from end to end of the country, each federal reserve district having a local subcommittee of bankers to distribute the loan in their territory.

Subscriptions can be paid in instalments.

The money, until needed, will be left on deposit in each district with bankers joining the national syndicate.

Russia will not participate in the loan.

The official announcement does not state that the money will not be used to pay for munitions. It merely says all the proceeds will be used in America to stabilize foreign exchange and thus facilitate export trade.

LOAN COST IS HIGH.

The British and French Legislatures must ratify the plan. Doubtless they will do so, but many members in both countries will be astonished and disappointed to learn it was found necessary to pay more than 5½ per cent. on a joint Anglo-French loan ranking ahead of every other dollar of their national debts.

The commissioners originally believed they could sell a straight 5 per cent. bond, without any conversion privilege, at $100 to the public, allowing only 1 per cent. or a little more to underwriting syndicate.

Instead, the loan is to cost at least $20,000,000—that is, the borrowers will not get $500,000,000, but $480,000,000 or less, if allowances are made for advertising and other expenses.

The Jewish bankers were partly responsible for the better terms reluctantly conceded at the eleventh hour by the commission. They contended that concessions were absolutely necessary for the success of the mammoth flotation.

The cutting down of the loan from $750,000,000 to $500,000,000 was also influenced in part by them, although many other financiers and bankers also urged this step when opposition to the issue developed.

New York bankers say they have found their clients "encouragingly responsive" on the basis of a 5½ per cent. income yield.

I understand the commission has received assurances of dozens of astonishingly large subscriptions from wealthy individuals, some of whom either have or aspire to have high social standing in Europe.

READY WITH MILLIONS.

Several railroad magnates are said to be ready to put down their names for millions.

Otto F. Kahn is reputed in financial circles to be among the richest men in America, and it is whispered his subscription will be near the head of the list. Mortimer L. Schiff is also strongly pro-allies and he is also expected to take a very large block.

The Rockefeller interests, it is stated, will invest heavily in the bonds, though perhaps openly.

Henry P. Davison, of J. P. Morgan & Co., issued the following statement on behalf of his firm:

"The Commission has made plain, by its statement, that it has determined at the outset to recognize investment conditions in America. It proposes to meet these conditions by issuing an obligation which is without precedent, namely, the joint and several promise to pay of Great Britain and France. To this it has attached terms which mean a yield to the investor of about 5½ per cent. per annum and carry with them a conversion privilege calculated, upon the return of normal conditions, to prove of distinct value to the holder of this bond.

INTERESTS OF SMALL INVESTORS.

"The interests of the small investor are also consulted in the decision which the commissioners have arrived at to issue the bonds in denominations as low as $100 and to allow subscribers to make instalment payments for the loan. It is to be noted that, as the commission has stated, this is an external loan free from all present or future English and French taxes.

"It is proposed by the commission that the proceeds of the loan be handled so as in no way to disturb our own money markets, and to that end the general plan will be to leave the cash realized from the bonds on deposit with banking institutions which become members of the syndicate throughout the United States.

"This proposed loan may, in fact, be considered as an arrangement made by American commercial and agricultural interests with their regular customers to accept deferred payments covering commodities purchased.

FURTHER AMERICAN TRADE.

"The agricultural, manufacturing and financial interests of this country should welcome the opportunity to extend credit to any solvent customer where the extension of such credit furthers American trade.

"The normal export trade of this country to Great Britain and France runs into many hundreds of millions of dollars annually. To preserve such trade under the existing abnormal conditions, we believe the proposed arrangement to be imperative and accordingly we and the many banking institutions and financial houses that will be associated with us will act as managers without compensation.

ROXBURY PASTOR PRAISES HEARST'S STAND ON LOAN

THE REV. C. V. BOWMAN.

The Rev. C. V. Bowman, pastor of the Swedish Congregational Church of Roxbury, today denounced the plan to loan half a billion dollars to the allies.

He declared that he will urge his congregation to protest to their bankers against participation in the loan.

"My people are very much opposed to this loan," he said.

"We have all along tried to maintain our neutrality, but when this loan question came up it stirred my congregation as well as others who belong to the denomination we represent.

"We have endorsed the fair attitude of the Hearst newspapers in giving us a hearing. The other papers would not give us even an inch to express ourselves and seem to be pledged to the allies.

"This whole matter is a moral one. Every Christian is bound to oppose this loan, if he is true to his principles. It may be in accordance with international law to do this, but the moral law takes precedence over it. My people are willing to stand by the moral law.

"We don't want our money in the banks gathered together by noted financiers and used in slaughtering people.

"All the ministers of our churches are against it. They say it is a shame for a Christian nation which is asked by its President to be neutral to be involved in this sort of business.

"We are going to call upon our merchants to use their influence with the banks. Our people are now aroused and we intend to prevent the loan being made and teach some of these Boston financiers that money is not the best part of their religion."

SUSPECT BOMB IN DESTRUCTION OF WARSHIP

By International News Service.

ROME, Sept. 29.—Premier Salandra today ordered a thorough investigation of the destruction of the Italian battleship Benedetto Brin, which was torn to pieces by an explosion in Brindisi Harbor yesterday afternoon.

Though dispatches from Brindisi state that the explosion was accidental, officials of the Ministry of Marine suspect that in some manner a bomb was placed in or near the battleship's magazine.

According to latest reports, the explosion cost the lives of 242 officers and men, including Rear Admiral Rubin de Cervin, commander of the squadron of which the Benedetto was flagship.

"The Benedetto Brin sank within seven minutes after the explosion," says a dispatch from Brindisi. "There was no time to lower boats and only those were saved who were on deck and threw themselves into the water. "Though boats were immediately lowered by other warships in the harbor some of the men in the water, having been badly injured by the explosion, sank before they could be reached."

Premier Salandra, who has served also as Minister of Marine since the resignation of Vice-Admiral Viale, asked the Duke of the Abruzzi, commander-in-chief of the Italian fleet, to make a personal investigation and fix responsibility for the disaster, irrespective of the persons involved, thus reassuring the country and the navy, which desires to be exposed to the blows of the enemy, but not to the immense dangers arising perhaps from negligence or lax discipline, which, if they exist, must be rigorously denounced and punished.

The decks of five warships anchored in the vicinity of the Benedetto Brin were littered by debris from the battleship when it was blown up. Nine men on one of them were injured, but not seriously.

Czar's Cabinet to Visit Him in Field

PETROGRAD, Sept. 29.—The Council of Ministers has started on a visit to Emperor Nicholas at his headquarters.

READY TO PUSH PROTEST ON COTTON

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN.
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—With the Dumba incident declared officially closed and with Secretary Lansing and Ambassador von Bernstorf to meet in Washington to bring all pending complications with Germany to a head, Senator Hoke Smith, leader of the cotton men, has been assured that the administration is now prepared to act to protect American trade against the British blockade.

The Senator has made it plain that he is not satisfied with the delay in protesting against the placing of cotton on the contraband list. He intends carrying the matter to the floor of Congress and has had assurances of support for embargo legislation on munitions as retaliation against the British trade blockade.

It is believed that the United States protest will be cabled to London immediately after Secretary Lansing's return, Saturday or Sunday.

His protest rejects all the arguments cited by Great Britain in defence of her order-in-council and her cotton contraband order, and insists that there shall be no change in international precedents while the European war is on.

It is understood here that at Friday's conference at New York Secretary Lansing will take up with the German ambassador the status of Captain von Papen, the German military attaché, officials believe his recall will be insisted on by this government and already the ambassador has signified a desire to meet the wishes of the United States in this matter.

Confirm Belief in Turk Atrocities

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 29.—State Department advices on reported Armenian atrocities today confirmed the belief of department officials that there was much truth in these reports. Apparently the view taken by Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, that the stories of hundreds of thousands of Armenians having been sacrificed were "pure fabrications" is not borne out by this new evidence of massacres throughout Armenia.

BRITISH THINK TERMS ARE HIGH, BUT ARE THANKFUL FOR LOAN

By PERCY THOMAS,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—Announcement that the Anglo-French financial mission had succeeded in securing a loan of $500,000,000 in the United States was received with satisfaction here today, though English experts regard the terms as rather high. They assert that the success of the commissioners shows America's belief that the allies will be victorious in the war, despite Germany's claims that its resources are still capable of waging the conflict for years.

The terms of the loan, it was stated in financial circles, have already received the tentative approval of both the British and French governments, both of which will formally ratify the action of the commission.

Though Russia is not participating in the loan, the Czar's government will profit therefrom. Russia's Minister of Finance, M. Bark, is now in London to get further credit from England, which with France is now financing all the allies except Italy.

ENVOYS PUT IN BUSY DAY WITH BANKERS IN MIDDLE WEST

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—Baron Reading and the three other Anglo-French commissioners, who are in Chicago to confer with Middle Western bankers and capitalists, started early today on the busy forenoon that was to terminate their visit here.

Several conferences were arranged at the Blackstone Hotel between the commissioners and the representatives of the largest banks in Chicago. At the same time Thomas W. Lamont of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., who came from the East with the foreign visitors, was to confer with the representatives of Chicago bond houses.

Where she's going and why she's going this isn't the place to tell, but one little bit of the secret everyone should know.

She is one of the Eight E's—of course the Eight E's are eight charming young ladies—and their adventures and love affairs are told in the most original series of stories ever published in any magazine.

It all started by Beulah Marie Dix writing a story for us about eight girls. The story offered such wonderful possibilities that we arranged to have eight popular authors each select one of the girls in Mrs. Dix's story and write a love story about her.

The result is

"The Loves of the Eight E's"
by Nine Famous Authors

It is really a big serial, made up of nine complete short stories, but each story is by a different writer. The first story, "How the Adventures Began," by Beulah Marie Dix is published complete in October

SEAVEY SUICIDE AFTER LURING GIRL AWAY

Suicide by poison has ended the career of Ralph E. Seavey of Kennebunk, Me., the young married man who lured trusting Josephine Torrey, an eighteen-year-old orphan of Saco, Me., to Brooklyn under promise of marriage, then robbed her and left her to starve.

Dispatches today from New York related that Seavey registered under an assumed name at the Mills Hotel No. 1 on Bleecker street and killed himself with a dose of cyanide of potassium. His body was removed to a New York morgue and placed among the unknown dead. It was identified finally by Seavey's brother, Harold A. Seavey, who had gone to New York from Kennebunk in search.

Miss Torrey, meanwhile, has been restored to the home of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Diamond Smith of No. 24 Dyer street, Saco. Forced by hunger she had appealed to the Brooklyn landlady with whom Seavey had left her. The landlady wrote to her brother, who came on from Saco and took her back home.

Search is being made for Ralph E. Seavey's wife, from whom he had been separated. She is believed to live in Brooklyn.

LURED FROM HOME.

Josephine Torrey has been an orphan since she was six years old. She and her brother went with their uncle and aunt to live in Saco. Josephine has been attending Thornton Academy in Saco. She is a girl of unusual charm. The beauty of her face and figure is accentuated by her wealth of blonde hair.

Last Summer Josephine received attention from Ralph E. Seavey of Kennebunk, son of Asa Seavey, a grocer. He was twenty-seven years old. He told the girl she has since said, that he was divorced. He won her love and complete confidence.

The girl told school friends that she was going to be married to Seavey. His marriage was not known to her friends, as his wife was in Brooklyn.

On Friday, September 17, the girl went out of her Saco home, saying she was going to a moving picture show in Biddeford, across the river from Saco. She did not return. Investigation showed she and Seavey had left Biddeford by train that evening.

Search was made in New England cities and as far as New York. The fact that Seavey was already married was learned. Josephine's relatives became frantic. They published appeals to her to come home.

RESTORED TO RELATIVES.

When the girl was finally restored to her relatives she told them her experience with Seavey, as follows:

"Seavey asked me to go to New York with him, and we boarded an express train at Portland that night. I believed he had obtained a divorce from his wife, and that he would marry me as soon as we got to New York. On our arrival there he took me to Brooklyn. I asked him when we would be married, and he said as soon as he got a job. I still believed him. He took me to a rooming house in Brooklyn."

A week ago today the girl noticed that Seavey was agitated by something he read in a newspaper. He did not let her see the paper. She now believes the article was one relating to the search for them.

Seavey left the girl in the Brooklyn boarding house. Later in the day the girl found he had taken all the money she had brought with her, her little savings for the past few years.

The girl stayed in her room for two days and a night. Driven by hunger she appealed last Friday night to the landlady, who sent for her relatives.

Search was continued, meanwhile, for Seavey. The deserter had gone to the Mills Hotel on Bleecker street. Suicide was his refuge, but his self-destruction remained unknown until his brother found the body among the "unknown dead" at the morgue.

MISS CHIU, FROM FARAWAY AMOY, AT RADCLIFFE

Miss Siok-An Chiu, daughter of a clergyman in Amoy, who has come to Boston for modern languages, music, and incidentally a little tennis.

Boston fame in academics and in music has brought to it Miss Siok-An Chiu from faraway Amoy in Southern China.

She is registered at Radcliffe College, where she is studying modern languages, mathematics and physics.

She will take up piano and voice culture at the New England Conservatory of Music as soon as she has her college work well in hand.

And, in addition to her studies, this Oriental maid would like to keep up her tennis for recreation.

She is the youngest of the six children of Rev. C. S. Chiu of Amoy, the Chiu household being known in Amoy for its culture and modern views.

Miss Chiu was graduated from the Amoy Girls' High School and will eventually return home to teach school herself. Speaking modestly for her work, she says:

"I am studying merely for my A. B degree now, but whether or not I shall specialize later I can not tell. I am planning to become a teacher in school in China, but, of course, something may cause me to change my mind before that time comes.

"You must not think that I have but lately arrived in this country, for I have been here a year. I spent last year in a preparatory school making up what I lacked on languages for my college examinations. I took German and French, doing enough last year to allow me to pass the Radcliffe entrance examinations in those subjects.

"I have selected five courses for my first year's work in college, German, French, English, mathematics and physics, and in addition I want to keep on with tennis, which I played considerably this past year."

Miss Chiu thinks that the re-awakened China will some time have equal suffrage.

PUZZLED OVER COLLISION AT LIGHTSHIP

The Boston lightship, which was rammed last night by the steamship Quantico of the Merchants and Miners' line, will remain at her station until tomorrow, when she will be brought to this city for repairs.

The Quantico was bound from Boston to Philadelphia.

A relief lightship is now on her way from Vineyard Sound to Boston to take the place of the damaged vessel while undergoing repairs.

No explanation has as yet been given for the accident. Shipping men are at a loss to understand how it could have occurred on a bright, moonlight night.

A wireless message received at the office of the Merchant & Miners' Steamship Company today from Captain Thatcher of the Quantico gives no account of the accident, but states that his ship was but slightly injured and was proceeding on her way to Philadelphia.

The puncture in the side of the lightship has been repaired by the lighthouse tender Mayflower, one of the first vessels to arrive at the scene of the accident last night.

The Boston lightship was returned but recently after having been out of commission for more than a year, during which time she was practically rebuilt.

Mule Meat Diet in British Army Says Malden Man

Reporting that some of the British soldiers are being fed on mule meat, Amos A. Roberts of No. 24 Wentworth street, Malden, has returned after serving a short time in the Royal Field Artillery in Liverpool. He left this country in May without telling his relatives where he was going. He obtained his discharge for physical disability.

Robert says that the English soldiers are allowed only a pound of bread for four men daily and that the horse fare served was one of the chief reasons he wanted to quit the army.

According to his story, two Malden youths, James Burns and James Gilroy, were in his training camp, but deserted.

The Real Four Leaf Clover

It Lies in the Faith Each of Us Has in Himself

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"BUT you must have hope, and you must have faith. You must love and be strong, and so
If you work, if you wait, you will find the place
Where the four-leaf clovers grow."

"OH, what luck! I've found a four-leaf clover!" cries Lucy.

There is no luck about finding a four-leaf clover—in fact there is bad luck in having a nature that is slave to olden superstition.

The only luck in all the world is just to have faith in your own nature and in your power to bend circumstances to your will. You make your luck by deserving it and winning it.

"One leaf is for hope," in the four-leaf clover of your nature. That means you must fight on in the face of difficulty with the feeling in your heart that the blackest clouds have a rift in them somewhere and that you can find it.

So earnestly must you wish to succeed that you simply cannot believe that one failure or two or a dozen mean anything. You must have a sort of dauntless stupidity that makes you unable to see that failure means anything but a chance to try again and more nearly approach success.

"And one leaf is for faith." That means the deep old truths of religion—of faith in your Maker. There is design under all that happens in the world. Life has a greater purpose than we can see. You must believe to be happy. You must trust to a Power greater than yourself. You must believe in goodness.

"And one is for love" and that leaf you must cultivate, for it is wonderfully precious. Radiate love and kindness for the mere joy of giving them out to the world. You will be much happier when you are loving and trusting people. You will find far more joy even in loving and confiding your confidence misplaced than in going about with suspicion and hatred darkening your days.

Give love and it will come back to you a hundredfold. Give love and the rich kindness of your own nature will make you happy. Love begets love, and the sweetness of a nature that is friendly will prove a marvellous blessing to you and to all who know you.

And the fourth leaf is the power to work—the power to make friends with your luck by earning and using that luck. It means the gift of earnest endeavor. It means not expecting the prizes of life to be handed to you when you have never tried for them, but the faith that life is based on the principles of a "square deal" and that if you make a good showing in the race you will get the prize you win.

The right to believing in four-leaf clovers—not the ones you find by wasting your energies in a search of the fields, but the ones that grow in your own nature if only you choose to search for them.

They Objected

The honeymoon was being spent in Ireland that glorious land famed—among other things—for its pigs and spuds.

One day while wandering through the glorious Country of Cork they came upon the quaintest little farm. Gervangeline was enchanted. Percival was literally in ecstasies. Life or the establishment coming out, the bridegroom asked her if she could oblige him with a drink of plain water.

She disappeared into the house, and—oh, joy!—reappeared with a bowl of glorious, creamy milk. While Percival hurled his face in the crockery, Gervangeline was delighted at the appearance of a number of little pigs who, also excited, squeaked in a most amusing way.

Hearing the noise, Percival came out of the bowl and politely demanded:

"Your little pigs seem excited," he said. "Perhaps they are thirsty, too?"

"Excited, is it?" And isn't it their little bowl you've drinkin' out of? But don't you believe they're thirsty. Sure, the little sculpsows were just after emptyin' the bowl themselves when your knock came at the door."

A Few Latest Models in Smart Styles from Paris

Republished by Special Arrangement with HARPER'S BAZAR, the Oldest and Greatest Woman's Magazine

From the October Number of Harper's Bazar

BEFORE his opening M. Worth gave this charming model from his collection to be sketched for Harper's Bazar. It is made of prune-colored silk, with its princess waistline an inch above the normal, and often another proof that we have many styles from which to choose this season.

THE tendency of Bulloz marks this suit of royal purple velvet with braid embroidery of vest and inside collar repeated on the sleeve where it joins just below the shoulder. Black fox is used in trimming, and with the suit is worn a Lewis hat of velvet trimmed with ostrich plumes.

PIERRE BULLOZ joins black broadcloth to blue faille in a suit which is heavily embroidered in black silk braid. Kolinsky fur trims the collar and outlines the large scallops of the short jacket. A hat of black velvet from Suzanne Talbot completes a costume that need fear no rival in smartness.

Adventures in Saving

By V. S.

IN answer to your request, I would like to state my experience in saving.

I came out of high school with the firmly planted idea that all work should be done embracing a collar and tie, and with a most scrupulous regard as to the care of nails, etc.

Fortunately, however, a couple of weeks' work soon dispelled that idea, and I determined that in order to succeed in anything one must concentrate on one subject and stick until success comes. This is just where the majority of people fail—they become rolling stones—consequently never gather "any moss."

After a year's work at a regular salary I had saved enough to buy an interest in one of the departments of the business. This so encouraged me that work and attention to business became a sort of second nature. At the end of the following year the department was so successful that my share, combined with my yearly savings, enabled me to take over the department completely.

My friends often used to remark, "You're a lucky guy," but they are the fellows who never succeed, and who always console themselves with the thought, "If I had the chance he had, I could have done the same things."

Perhaps I have missed a few dances, parties, good times and the like, but I figure that one can better enjoy all those pastimes "with a full pocket" a little later in life, than with an empty one, in the youthful age.

Having sold out my department, I went into business for myself in another part of the city, and as a result of throwing aside a few years' pleasure for hard work, I, now at the age of twenty-six, am going smoothly up the ladder of success.

I do not know whether this letter will fall in with your meaning of "experiences in saving," but it shows just what a little will power and energy can really accomplish.

Makes the Eyes Clear, White and Beautiful.

If your eyes ever get bloodshot and yellow you can clear them up in half a minute and make them bright and sparkling by dropping a single drop of pure liquid Murine into each eye. It's wonderful how quickly this prescription works and its use is entirely safe as it contains no cocaine, belladonna or harmful drugs of any kind or boracic acid, and it cannot possibly smart or injure the eyes. This prescription is fine to use before going out in the evening to make the eyes clear and white. Biker-Jaynes and leading druggists everywhere have it put up and ready for use. A great many leading eye specialists endorse and recommend this same prescription and use it in their own practice.—Advertisement.

A Fictionless Fable

Being All About a Modern Cinderella

By ANN LISLE

THERE was once a widow who had three daughters. The mother does not count in this story, so having politely mentioned her first of all, we merely dismiss her and consider the daughters.

At the moment when our attention is directed to them first, Ella, the eldest, is twenty-five and looks it, quite in disaccord with a modern woman's way of managing her years, so that at least five of them shall not be in evidence. The twins, Molly and Polly, are twenty, lively sixteen, and have the worldly wisdom of a very worldly thirty.

The family income couldn't by any effort be stretched to buy three girls' pretty clothes and take them into society. So Molly and Polly worked out their conclusion as wisely that the widow was all enthusiasm, and poor Ella acquiesced perforce. The idea was this:

Ella, who couldn't conceivably be a social success, since she had neither face and figure nor manner and charm to compass it, should prepare herself for a secretarial position and go down into the business world where she would surely make money and might also make a bit with some men who liked the idea of a wife with ability better that the ability to love his wife.

Clinging to the plan said that Molly and Polly, with the concentrated family income and whatever largess Ella chose to distribute, should go about hunting for Prince Charmings.

Said Molly: "Of course if we marry well we'll take care of you, Cinderella, and if we don't you'll be able to take care of yourself."

"And us too, maybe," giggled Polly.

At the end of the year Ella was earning twenty-five dollars a week and Molly had married herself off to a youth whose father had left him twenty-five thousand dollars a year. At the end of two years Ella had an increase of ten dollars a week in her salary. Molly had twins and Polly had a husband. So everybody was more or less happy.

By the time Ella was thirty she commanded a salary of five thousand dollars a year and the respect of all the men who knew her. She was "Aunt Ella" to Molly's twins and to Polly's son and heir. And every time she cuddled the babies in her empty arms she knew that she was Cinderella indeed, but a woman within, and so capable of all a woman's yearnings.

When Ella was thirty-five she was earning $10,000 a year and that salary proved her fairy godmother. It brought her wonderful clothes that actually made it appear as if she had a good figure. It bought her the services of a beauty specialist that made brightened eyes and fluffy hair and a clear complexion give her face the semblance of charm, too.

Ella was free from worry and from indigestion and had red lips and a joyous heart—and a reputation far efficiency that made men regard her as a very respectable money-coining machine and so even as a possible wife. But Cinderella wanted the Right Prince to fit on her foot the little glass slipper of absolute devotion.

Just then Molly's husband lost his money and Polly's husband lost his life. Ella promptly took everybody concerned to live with her and set about supporting a large and heterogeneous family that did not exactly belong to her. She settled down in her own mind to being "Aunt Ella" for life.

And then one night while Molly and the widow were off dancing with Molly's otherwise unemployed husband, Polly's youngest had convulsions. "Aunt Ella" telephoned madly around the neighborhood for a doctor and finally one came and liked her frightened eyes and her trembling lip and wonderful blue negligee that was left over from the days when she hadn't been supporting two or three families.

And Ella liked everything about Dr. Johnstone from his keen grey eyes to his confidence-inspiring manner.

Between them the girl and the doctor saved the baby.

"Now that the kiddie is quite safe, would you mind looking at my ankle—I think I sprained it when I first began trying to do things for my little invalid," said Ella at last.

The doctor looked at the ankle and while he was thinking how white and blue-veined it was and how much sheer grit the girl had shown in standing her pain until the baby was safe, she was thinking how much she would like to run her fingers through the waves of his yellow hair.

At the end of three months Molly's husband had a job and Polly had succeeded in her job of finding a husband.

As for Dr. Johnstone—well his bandage had fitted Ella's little white foot as snugly as the glass slipper that Prince Charming had put on Cinderella's foot of old. And they had both discovered how well her head fitted into the hollow of his shoulder—and how perfectly their natures and ideals fitted them to announce to the family what it was beginning to suspect.

MORAL—Prince Charming does not always arrive on schedule time or drive up in a coach and six—and Fairy Godmothers wear strange guises, sick babies or sprained ankles or other odd raiment—but the modern Cinderella would do well to have pretty white feet and dainty negligees—because you never can tell when Prince Charming is coming!

What Happened to Jane

Augustus Reeves, with His Eye on Jane, Hints at His Lonely Life

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER III.

Copyright, 1913, Star Company.

AUGUSTUS REEVES lingered on the church steps talking with Mr. Evans, the minister, longer than Ezra Hardy had expected him to. The deacon had seemed quite impatient to get away from the sanctuary when he had hoped to have Jane's presence, as well as her father's company on the way home. Now he recalled many details of parish business that he wished to discuss with his pastor. At last Ezra made a move as if to start homeward.

"I must be going," he remarked, "for Maria'll be wondering what's happened to me."

"All right, I'll walk along with you," Augustus Reeves said. He told the minister good-night and fell into step beside Ezra. "I told Jane that perhaps I'd stop in for a little call, you know," he remarked, "so she may be expecting me."

His companion was conscious of a vague resentment of this suggestion. His mind was not analytical enough for him to understand this feeling. He wondered why he felt as he did and why he did not really like Augustus thoroughly. He remembered that, even as a boy, "Gus" had never been a favorite of his, somehow he had not quite trusted him even then.

Gus had always been self-satisfied and sure of himself. Well—maybe that was because he had always been a success. His father's farm had been the model farm of the neighborhood, and when he died he left it to his only son. While still young, Augustus had been wise enough to marry a rich girl who had lived but a short year after her wedding day and had, in her turn, left all her money to her husband. Yes, success had come easy to this man. He had been widower now for ten years, and until lately had seemed to avoid the numerous girls in the neighborhood.

Really it was proof of how attractive Jane was, the father now reflected, that the man should seek her out. Then he remembered what Maria had said two hours ago.

"But she don't love him," she had objected.

Could she ever love him? the father asked himself. And, as though he read this unspoken question, the man at his side began to talk of himself and his plans—tentatively, "as if," Ezra thought, "trying to find out the lay of the land."

AUGUSTUS FINDS LIFE RATHER LONELY

"Do you know, Mr. Hardy," he said, "I'm finding my life at the house up here on the hill pretty lonely? It's ten years since I lost my wife, and it's six years since my dear died. For a while I got along pretty good—about lately I've begun to think I'm foolish to spend my days like I do."

"Is that so?" his companion queried mildly. It appeared at the time the easiest remark to make. "Yes, that's the way I feel about it," Augustus continued. "And I've about made up my mind to think of marrying again."

Ezra was no diplomat and he cudgeled his brains in vain for some suitable reply to this speech. Then he fell back upon more on his last unoriginal but cautious response.

"Is that so?" he said again.

But this time his sentence was ignored. Augustus Reeves was well launched on the talk of himself, and as long as there was somebody to listen to him, nothing else mattered for the moment. He explained to Ezra that he had always led an exemplary life; that he was a regular church member and church worker; that he gave largely to the church; that the minister had often told him that he considered him one of his most important, if not the most important, parishioner. He had a goodly sum laid aside in various banks, Reeves went on. Any woman whom he might care to marry would be "comfortably fixed."

He paused as if for comment at last.

"I suppose she will," Ezra observed.

"I've been thinking," resumed Augustus after a prolonged pause, "that I'd rather marry a real young woman, one I can teach my ways, rather than a woman near my own age. Forty-five is young in a man, but it's not young in a woman."

"No, it's not," Ezra admitted. He felt suddenly frightened. Was this man going to tell him that he would like to keep company with Jane? If so, what would her father say to him? The notion of Jane as Augustus Hardy's wife did not seem so attractive now to Ezra, as it had a while ago. The idea of his child being taught and trained by Augustus!

"A young girl," the widower had resumed, "who married me would be safe from poverty, in these times, when money's tight and so many are looking for work. It's a great thing for a person to be sure of having a good home and enough to keep them always."

EZRA SWITCHES OFF TO A SAFER TOPIC.

"Yes," assented Ezra. Reeves' statement contained a painful truth which he himself had often dwelt upon in his thoughts of Jane. But he could not trust himself to think of it now.

"Have you noticed," he said irrelevantly, "how high the corn is in Smith's field. Now, my corn's kinder backward this year. What do you suppose ails it?"

The question was well chosen, for it gave Augustus Reeves a chance to express his opinion on the cultivation of corn, thus sparing his listener further speech upon a delicate topic.

Edward Sanderson, seated on the Hardy porch, discerned the two men approaching far down the moonlit road, and he rose to his feet.

"I must be going," he announced. "I have to catch an early train in the morning—and here comes Miss Hardy's caller." He laughed, shook hands with his two hostesses and took his departure.

The girl turned impulsively to her mother. "Oh!" she murmured, "this evening has been too nice to be spoiled by talking to a man who bores me. Just say to Mr. Reeves that I'm tired and have gone to my room—won't you, dear?"

Thus it came about that Augustus Reeves, greeting Mrs. Hardy for Jane, was told that the child had come home from church tired and had gone to bed.

(To Be Continued.)

Explanations Necessary.

"It's the yardarm for you, my man," growled the surly old captain, as Larry, the new cook, came aboard.

"I say, it's the yardarm for you if you don't cook a bit better than the last landlubber that vittled us."

"Ay, ay, sir," piped Larry, doing his best to appear nautical.

In reality, however, he was very dubious. Had the boat been a little nearer port he'd have made a dash for the land. Six weeks out of work had prompted him to grab any job coming along, but with all his Irish optimism he inwardly acknowledged he had no pretensions in the cooking line.

Happily breakfast was served and passed with little comment. "We'll see what the dinner is like," significantly muttered the captain.

As soup was being served at midday Larry found, to his dismay, that he had forgotten to clean the tea leaves out of the urn the soup had been made in. Frantically rushing aloft, he burst into the mess-room.

"Cap'n," he yelled, "if you find any tay leaves in the soup you'll know it's mint!"

WORCESTER, Sept. 29.—Miss Margaret Foley, by defying the police and holding a street meeting for suffrage, has started a war discussion between the "pros" and "antis" here.

The suffragists say she did right. The anti-suffragists assert that her action was breaking the law.

Chief of Police George Hill says it will not happen again, and that his patrolmen should have stopped Miss Foley.

The Boston suffrage leader spoke for forty-five minutes from her automobile at the corner of Commercial and Front streets. One or two patrolmen were in the neighborhood at the time, but made no attempt to stop her.

Yet Chief Hill, a month ago, had issued orders to stop all street corner meetings on the ground that by obstructing traffic they violated the laws.

KILLS LANDLADY WITH BABY IN HER ARMS

Michael Delvisco, a quarryman, died at the Relief Hospital early today from a bullet wound in the head, which he himself inflicted after he had fatally shot Mrs. Mary Stevens, his landlady, at No 24 Monument street, Charlestown, and wounded the three-year-old child she snatched up in a vain attempt to prevent him from shooting.

Mrs. Stevens, who was shot in the breast and the abdomen, died soon after her arrival at the hospital. Catherine, her daughter, who was shot in the back, is expected to recover.

Delvisco had been boarding in Mrs. Stevens' house in Monument street for about a year. Neighbors thought them man and wife, although Percy L. Stevens, Mrs. Stevens' husband, an ammunition worker in Framingham, spent two nights a week at home.

FRENZIED WITH JEALOUSY.

According to Florence, the eleven-year-old daughter of Mrs. Stevens, Delvisco came home to supper and started to quarrel, accusing her mother of paying attentions from other men. Her mother, the child told the police, indignantly denied this. They both began to talk loud, and suddenly, Florence declared, Delvisco took a revolver, aiming it at her mother.

When Mrs. Stevens saw the revolver she screamed and snatched up her daughter Catherine, of whom Delvisco had been very fond, she thought that he would hesitate to shoot for fear of hurting "the baby" as he called the little girl.

Delvisco, however, immediately fired. His first shot pierced her breast, the second lodged in the abdomen; the third shot pierced the back of the little girl. As Delvisco started shooting Florence ran screaming downstairs to the street, yelling for police. A moment later Mrs. Stevens, with the baby still in her arms, stumbled down stairs, collapsing on the sidewalk.

USED MAXIM SILENCER.

Sergeant Horton and Patrolmen Charles McDonald and Henry Herman arrived almost immediately after the shooting. They found Delvisco in the kitchen, unconscious, a new thirty-eight calibre revolver, fitted with a Maxim silencer, at his side. He and Mrs. Stevens were placed in an ambulance and hurried to the Relief Station. Catherine was carried to the hospital in the auto of Judge Charles A. Sullivan, which was requisitioned by James J. Mullen, Judge Sullivan's assistant clerk of courts.

The other children, Florence, eleven, One, nine, and Christopher, four, were taken to the police station at first, and later turned over to a neighbor to be cared for until taken by their father. Before Mrs. Stevens died she made a statement to the police, declaring that Delvisco's jealousy was the cause of the shooting.

HAITIAN REBELS KILL SOLDIER IN AMBUSH

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—The killing of Sergeant Thompson by rebels ambushed in the Haitian jungle has brought Washington face to face with the seriousness of the campaign which the Americans are waging in the Black Republic. Thompson was shot down while rescuing brother troopers in rescuing the body of one of their companions who had been drowned.

Officials were fearful today that the toll of American lives will be heavy in the guerilla campaign which the rebellious Cacos have launched against the Americans. The danger, they say, will increase as Admiral Caperton's forces press farther into the interior to disarm the rebels and keep communications open to the seaboard.

The Haitian campaign with its increasing loss of American lives is bound to draw vigorous protest from those Senators opposed to the sending of expeditionary forces out of the country without congressional sanction, and these Senators likewise are reckoned among the opponents to the treaty which had established a protectorate over the island republic.

Opponents to the Haitian campaign are drawing a contrast between President's policy there and in Mexico, pointing out that the only difference in the two situations concerns the size of the respective countries.

Asks Court to Keep Wife Away From His Store

Frederick Mayor of No. 54 Eliot street today filed a bill in equity against his wife, Elsie, to restrain her from entering his place of business on Eliot street or interfering with his customers. He is a manufacturer of embroidery and laces on the first and third floors of the Eliot street building.

Mayor claims his wife has destroyed patterns of embroidery and has interfered with his employes and called upon his customers, pleading with them not to trade with him, and has made false statements about him and the quality of his goods.

He also alleges that she has opened mail addressed to him and removed checks, which she has endorsed and kept the money.

Last Saturday, Mayor claims, after he had forbidden his wife to enter the premises, she broke the glass in the door and created a disturbance that attracted a crowd.

German Prisoners Arrive in England

SOUTHAMPTON, Sept. 29.—Three hundred men, the first detachment of the German prisoners captured by the British in the latest battles on the western front, are here today.

NEGROES SAY THEY KILLED WATCHMAN

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 29.—Alexander McCrea and Joseph Wilson, the two negroes arrested for the murder of William G. St. John, the watchman at the Edwards & Walker store, have, according to the police, made a full confession of the crime. They have, the police say, acknowledged their share of it, and have told all the details of the tragedy.

According to the police, the two men decided to break into the store, as soon as it was closed. They did this and secured possession of some of the finer automatic pistols in the establishment. They went to the third story and intended to jump from the window to neighboring roofs.

They were already near the window, say the police, when St. John, making his rounds, came along the passageway. He carried a revolver and a flashlight. He discovered McCrea.

St. John covered the intruder with his gun, and with his left hand grabbed him by the collar. "Hold up your hands," the watchman. McCrea obeyed. St. John was just on the point of leading out his prisoner when he heard a noise behind him. He partly turned, and in the dim light he saw a moving figure. There was a flash and a bullet pierced his arm. St. John immediately replied with his revolver. A succession of shots followed and the watchman staggered and then fell.

[illegible]RGE WILSON TO PAY VISIT TO BIG FAIR.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 29.—A big campaign was started here today to induce President Wilson to come to the Pacific coast before Winter begins. The move to have the Chief Executive attend the Panama-Pacific Exposition will be boosted by men of all political parties.

Assured of cooperation from various civic organization of the State, a leading afternoon paper, in an editorial today, extended a public invitation to the President to visit the West this Fall.

This paper at the same time started a movement to have every school child in San Francisco sign a petition addressed to President Wilson urging him to come.

The plan to induce the Executive to come West includes a trip by a committee of California citizens to Washington, bearing the petitions urging the trip. It was considered likely that the movement would be joined in by cities of Oregon and Washington.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKET

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks opened [illegible] New York as a [illegible]. Most of those which did not start with gains were unchanged. War order stocks were the most active, but there was plenty of business in motor cars. Railroads were not conspicuous in early trading and were irregular, with the majority of leaders showing small gains. The [illegible] of the foreign loan terms strengthened [illegible]. They were better on the whole than had been forecasted [illegible] establishment of British and French credit to the amount of half a billion dollars is expected to stabilize exchange and to insure a foreign market and adequate prices for American products. The report of victories by the allied army in the western field of war added to confidence among stock speculators. They believe German defeats will cause the American public to feel more confidence in the loan. Bears were of the opinion that a decided market reaction is due and point to the fact that the price advance and great activity is largely among war specialties. They figure that the climax of the bull movement in the latter is near. But this is a time, it also is argued, when all precedents appear to lack application.

SEVERAL AT HIGHEST PRICES.

Within half an hour a number of issues sold at highest record prices, including Republic Steel, Tennessee Copper and Pressed Steel. Colorado Fuel attained its highest price in nine years. Goodrich sold at a new 1915 high. At the end of half an hour the price trend was upward as regards the list in general.

The selling pressure which culminated at the end of fifteen minutes did not cause any reaction to speak of. At 10.15 gains included Allis-Chalmers 1⅛, American Can ½, Car & Foundry ⅝, American Locomotive ¾, Baldwin 6½, Colorado Fuel 2⅝, Crucible ⅝, Distillers ⅛, Pressed Steel 2¼, Republic Steel 1⅛, Westinghouse 1⅛, Studebaker 1¼, Tennessee Copper 2⅝, Inspiration ⅝, Anaconda ⅛, Pittsburgh Coal 1⅛, Atchison ¼, Canadian Pacific [illegible], Northern Pacific ⅜, Southern Pacific ¼ and Union Pacific ⅜. U. S. Steel was unchanged.

Among declines were Utah Copper ⅜, American Smelting ½, Chesapeake & Ohio ⅜, New Haven [illegible], Reading ¼ and Willys-Overland [illegible].

Trading was very active in New York during the first hour. The number of small lots testified to public participation.

TRADING DULL HERE.

In Boston the volume of business was at large. The tone was firm, however. Among early local gains were Greene-Cananea 1, Tamarack ½, Shoe Machinery ¼, United Fruit ⅜ and American Zinc ⅜. The latter was active and strong. Before the end of the first hour it was up 1[illegible]. Among losses were Atlantic Gulf preferred [illegible], Alaska Gold [illegible] and New Haven [illegible]. The last named [illegible] that much on the sale of [illegible] shares.

Producers are firm for 18[illegible] cents a pound for electrolytic and are said to be in a strong position to get what they ask for copper. The recent heavy selling on for [illegible] and domestic account was at 18 cents it is understood. Spelter and lead are quiet.

Medium Aids Search for an Erring Wife

FULL DETAILS in RE. INVESTING a DIME in the MOVIES

Patience, people. You may think that the plan Mr. Daw and myself offer you and 9,999 other brilliant Americans is the only one I have handy to help make you weathly quickly, and on little investment. I plan to devote my time and that of our high-priced staff of financial experts to your service.

If you were not fortunate enough to be one of the 10,000 members of the Wallingford "Movie" Ring, do not despair. I will have another plan just as good for you.

But anyway, tomorrow, I will tell you how, for the price of a 10c loaf of bread, you might make a fortune. How our co-operative moving picture going public would extend like a net over the country.

Here's the proposition. You could invest a dime. So could 9,999 others. With the $1,000 thus received we could open a moving picture theatre. Each of the stockholders would bring two friends. This would give us 30,000 customers to start. Those customers are given coupons to urge them to bring two more friends. So that we could open a chain of theatres throughout the country.

Being utterly optimistic wouldn't do for us. We are not radical, we are very conservative. That is why we are hesitating to decide about the proposition at once, even though inside of a week 10c would unquestionably become $10 and inside of a year $1,000. And even though we are sure that we could make 10c become $158,976.23 within five years.

TIFFANY MEDALS AWARDED 43 BY MOTOR IN CROSS-COUNTRY RUNS

Forty-three transcontinental tourists have won Tiffany silver medals awarded by MoToR for cross-country runs this year and there are twenty-three other aspirants on the road at present eager to capture these trophies, which certify that they have complied with the conditions laid down by this paper.

Last May, when MoToR, the "national magazine of motoring," announced it would give a medal to every owner who drove from any point east of the Mississippi River to the Pacific coast or from California east to the Father of Waters it did not anticipate such a heavy [illegible] transcontinental motor traffic, but the expositions in San Francisco and Los Angeles, coupled with the fact that the European war kept the American pleasure-seekers at home this year, started many on long motor tours in their own country.

Just how many will make transcontinental automobile tours this year is impossible to predict, but certain it is that MoToR is highly satisfied with the enrollment of tourists under the banner of the "national magazine of motoring." Whereas up to two years ago only some twenty cars ever had crossed the continent, already forty-three have made the trip as contestants for the MoToR medal out of a total of sixty-six entered.

Of the forty-three who already have finished, twenty-one crossed the continent from the Atlantic to the Pacific, while four others have made the complete cross-country trip from the Pacific coast east. Four of these have made round trips or double transcontinental runs. Four of the medal winners are women. Those who made the trip west from the Atlantic coast were:

REMEDY DID MORE THAN IS CLAIMED

Mrs. N. R. Beale of 38 Appleton St. Says Plant Juice Cured Her Stomach Trouble.

The mental and physical state of chronic stomach disorder sufferers is too well known to need much enlargement upon. The disease travels very rapidly, leaving the liver, kidneys and intestines affected and robs the patient of sufficient nerve power to successfully combat the ailment. Statistics show that this ailment is far more prevalent than the average individual would suppose. It is simply self-destruction to let this trouble sap your comfort and health away. It wears its victim down until he grows weaker as the disease gathers force, nourishing itself on the sufferer's very life blood. It is more than probable that there is at least one member in every family who is afflicted in this way, and these are the people whom I want to know about Plant Juice.

MRS. N. R. BEALE

Daily grateful people are testifying to the merits of Plant Juice and recommending it to their friends. Recently the following signed testimonial was received from Mrs. N. R. Beale, who resides at No. 38 Appleton Street, has lived in this city for 14 years and is a well known and popular lady. She said:

"For years I have suffered with stomach trouble, which took the form of indigestion and dyspepsia. My food would ferment in my stomach and cause gas and a very painful condition. I had pains all over my body, with hot flashes occasionally, was restless and nervous and could not sleep at night. I was weak and felt tired out all the time and was unable to do my housework. I read about Plant Juice and what it was doing for others, so I began to take it and felt better immediately. I have now taken only two bottles and am feeling like a new woman, have no more aches or pains and my stomach is in such good condition that I can eat anything I want. I can do my housework now, sleep fine and can truthfully say your Plant Juice has cured me. It is a grand medicine and does more than is claimed for it."

The Plant Juice Man is at the Liggett Drug Co.'s store, corner of Washington and Avon streets, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy.—Advertisement.

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

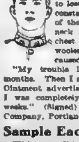
"My trouble started first by the skin becoming inflamed and sore after exercise, then it would be irritated if I rubbed or touched my body. The general appearance of the breaking out was a rash that caused me to lose sleep and it kept up a constant irritation. The parts of the body affected were the neck and arms and also my chest. I could not wear woolen undergarments as they caused irritation.



"My trouble lasted for about three months. Then I saw a Cuticura Soap and Ointment advertisement so I tried them. I was completely healed in about two weeks." (Signed) Paul J. Courtney, 37th Company, Portland, Me., March 24, 1915.

WHAT RIVAL MIRACLE MEN SAY OF BIG CLASH TODAY

By GEORGE T. STALLINGS,
Manager of Second Place Braves.

We'll be on the job today and when the Braves are on the job there's a ball game in sight for the Phillies or any other team that comes in sight. The Braves are still in the pennant hunt today and will stay there until they win out or are beaten out. Nobody can say we ever quit under fire.

We will go after today's game to the limit, because all my men want to show that they can give battle to the leaders. The Braves will put in the strongest lineup they can, although everybody knows that injuries have given us a hard blow But we'll be there strong.

By PATRICK J. MORAN,
Manager of First Place Phillies.

We are going to try and win today's game from the Braves. How about the series at Allston? Well, we'll play that a game at a time, just as we have gone through the season.. How do my men feel about the pennant? Nonsense, now. They don't know anything about a pennant. We've got the game-at-a-time bug, not any pennant bug. There's nobody on my squad talking about a pennant.

All my men are in fine shape, except Killifer When he will get back in the game I can't say Alexander? Oh, he's standing the pace all right.

Sport Fans Must Read the American for Reliable News

The AMERICAN again calls attention to the fact that those interested in sports and sporting events must read the AMERICAN for the up-to-the-minute news.

Yesterday the AMERICAN was the first paper to announce President Gaffney's offer of Braves' Field for the Harvard-Yale football game if a switch from the Stadium is made.

The AMERICAN was the only paper in Boston to print the news of Washington's great victory over Detroit, which brought the Red Sox to within one game of the pennant, nine the Phillies' win over Brooklyn, and the latest baseball results in the American, National and Federal Leagues.

The AMERICAN published an exclusive interview with Manager Stallings of the Braves, telling the Braves' chances in the final fight for the flag and reviewing their work for the season.

The AMERICAN published an exclusive interview with Mrs. Patrick J. Moran, wife of the manager of the Phillies.

The AMERICAN was the only paper in New England to publish the late racing results on all the big tracks.

If you want all the news, reliable and up-to-the-minute READ THE AMERICAN'S SPORTING PAGES.

Switch Made in $2 Section.

Seats in the first base stand, instead of the third base section, will be sold for $2 and be reserved, providing it's the Red Sox vs. the Phillies in the World's Series, according to secretary Riley. The other arrangement was first announced

Danforth Drafted by Rowland.

CHICAGO, Sept 29.—Pitcher Dave Danforth of the Louisville (American Association) club, who recently fanned 18 Kansas City batters in a game, has been drafted by the White Sox.

Hose Have Cinch; Braves Have Slim Outside Chance

The American League pennant can be clinched for the Red Sox today if the Tygers lose to the Browns, the Carrigans, though idle again, cannot lose the flag

Yes Sir, with the clan of Jennings going to grief today, and coming back by winning its three remaining games, while the Red Sox are losing the seven games they still have to play, the percentage column would appear thusly:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| RED SOX | 99 | 53 | .651 |
| Tygers | 100 | 54 | .649 |

The Braves still have a chance for the Tener pennant, but it is a slim one at best If Our Boys win their nine remaining games and the Phillies win only eight of their remaining games before, the final standing would be:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| BRAVES | 87 | 66 | .569 |
| PHILLIES | 90 | 64 | .584 |

Or even with the Phillies winning one of their four remaining postponements, after losing four straight here, and with the Braves going through with a sweep in their five final battles with New York in the home entry would call that virtually

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| BRAVES | 87 | 66 | .569 |
| PHILLIES | 87 | 64 | .585 |

Of course it is Philadelphia's championship, say

Rindge Tech Flays Huntington, 19 to 0

Rindge Tech opened its season by registering a clever 19 to 0 victory over Huntington School on Russell Field Tech put up old style game in the rain, was played Hubbard, E. Metivier and Lynch starred for Tech. Hubbard, Rindge A 5-yard run by Captain Miller was the main feature

Rindge was without three of its stars, Angus, who has been declared ineligible, White, who has not passed the usual exam nation, and Core, who failed to report at all. Rindge Tech looked the punch End Bosch alone put up a rapid game for the locals.

Gainer Gets Homer on Braves' Campus

The Red Sox are ready for the Phillies and the big games to come. The Sox had their first workout on Braves Field yesterday and today see everything to their advantage Two hours of hard practice and a study of the "shadows" at the big park just to put the Carrigans on edge for the World Series

Jay Gainer flew the grounds. He started a home run to right centre that broke up a good ball game between the first and second teams

SIDELIGHTS ON SPORTS

By RIGHT FIELD

ALONG comes a "fan" who, like everybody in this broad land of ours, is entitled to his opinion and says: "I dropped into the corner drug store in the neck of woods where I live and put forth this idea—that the Phillies will be the Braves of 1915 and that by the same token the Red Sox will be the Nicks of the World's Series It seems I started an awful argument. I wonder what some of the other 'fans' think of my idea"

IN skirting around the edges of this correspondent's letter it appears that the Morans are the miracles of the Tener circuit this year They have achieved, so far, when almost everybody said earlier in the season, that they couldn't. Moran is the 1915 Miracle Man. He has stolen Georges Stallings' stuff and, moreover, grabbed two of last year's champions to add to his squad

BUT can Moran win the supreme honor with a so-called oneman pitching staff? Stallings had to have a star trio in order to wind the big clash up quickly And wherein are the Red Sox the unlucky Macks of last year? Surely they haven't a pitching corps that is going to be the fliver that Cornelius McGillicuddy trotted out for the big test The Red Sox pitchers are coming, while the Mackian staff was gone, although it took those two games to demonstrate what only few had suspected

THE Morans, at the moment, are the Braves of 1915, until we stop to remember that Captain Rivers says his team is still in the pennant hunt Even the Philadelphia papers call the Morans "the coming champions" No positive stuff in Stowtown yet. But where does our friend get his idea that the Sox are last year's Macks? The Morans had a "clinch" in their league in 1914, but this year the Red Sox have shown some mighty fine baseball and been in some tough contests while showing the fight by which they stayed at the top of the heap

THE Red Sox are well paid; haven't the financial worries nor "economy" the Macks had a year ago. The Sox have had quite a bit of new blood injected since they were at the top in 1912. They are a team on which President Lannin can expend practically "past" for next year's campaign. Mack, we must believe, knew before he went into the World's Series that he was getting about the last ounces of baseball his combination would yield The Sox, if they wanted to make any changes, have been sitting on the bench whom many a big league team had just as soon put in as a regular

Robins Out of Race.

The Robins saw their last hope in the National League pennant race die yesterday when they suffered a 6 to 4 defeat from the Phillies

LEWIS DEFEATS BRITTON; WELSH COMES NEXT

ATLAS A. A. RESULTS.

Ted (Kid) Lewis, England, defeated Jack Britton, Chicago; twelve rounds.

Joe Eagan, South End, defeated Charley Beyers, South End; eight rounds.

Willie Green, South Boston, defeated George Brooks, Cambridge; six rounds.

"Kid" Thomas, Lawrence, defeated Teddy Murphy, West End; six rounds.

TED (KID) LEWIS, the wonderful English boxer, is today in a position to demand a bout with Freddy Welsh for the lightweight championship of the world. This dazzling ring phantom clashed with Jack Britton of Chicago at the Atlas A. A. last night and carried off the honors in one of the fastest twelve-round battles staged in Boston this year. It was a great fight and Lewis more than came up to expectations. His admirers claimed in advance of the contest he would dispose of Britton, but few "fans" believed he would give Danny Morgan's champion such an artistic beating as he did.

LEWIS had the better of the going in seven of the twelve rounds, three sessions were in favor of Britton while honors were fifty-fifty in the other two frames. It was the second meeting in this city between Lewis and Britton. The first bout was staged at the Triple A organization several weeks ago Lewis was awarded the verdict by "Patsey" Haley, although it appeared as though Britton had outpointed his opponent. There was no doubt, however, about the winner of last night's encounter, as Lewis had a big advantage in his favor when the referee sounded at the end of the final frame

THERE was the usual wrangling before the fisticuffers started Both Britton bout would not be complete unless Jimmy Johnston and Danny Morgan engaged in a thirty-minute debate before the festivities got underway. The referee, as usual, caused them a lot of worry last night. It would seem that such an important question would have been definitely settled days ago, but it wasn't and to Daniel and James had their little discussion. After a long and needless delay, Dan Lane, president of the Atlas Club, was selected to referee the match, while J. J. Bourco and "Philly" Hamilton, two newspapermen, were appointed as judges. Both judges gave the big plum to Lewis and consequently Lane did not have to cast any vote. The smooth talking one did a good job as referee, but it cannot be said that his task was a hard one as both boxers fought hard and clean most of the time. It might also be added that Britton weighed in at 135¼ pounds, while Lewis refused to get on the scales

JOE EAGAN fought a clever bout and did not experience much trouble in outpointing Charley Beyers in the semi-windup of eight rounds. Willie Green defeated Georges Brooke in a six-round encounter, while (Kid) Thomas bested Teddy Murphy.

Reading and Brett Aiding Coach McCabe

Coach Tom McCabe put the Boston College High youngsters through a stiff drill on the old Walpole street grounds. The second team, though light in its backfield, has a heavy line and for sently held the first team for downs

Tom Brett, a former Harvard player and South Boston High coach, and "Pinkie" Brett, a shining light at Holy Cross a few years ago, have McCabe material help in rounding out the team for its game with Manchester High at Manchester on Saturday. The schedule:

Oct. 7 Manchester High at Manchester; Oct. 6 Cambridge Latin Oct. 12, Berry, High at Revere; Oct. 13, Malden at Malden; Oct. 20, Norwood at Norwood; Nov. 3 St. John's Prep. Nov. 13, Roxbury, Nov. 19, Weymouth at Weymouth.

DOPING OUT THE WORLD'S SERIES

by HUGH S. FULLERTON

This man, with all due regard to Eddie Collins, was the brains and the spirit of the Athletics during their winning years, and although he accomplishes his work in such a quiet way that the "fans" hardly notice him, he is one of the greatest [illegible] game has known.

Phillies' Second Baseman Is a Nifty Ball Player.

Niehoff is a pretty nifty player himself. The first time I saw this fellow was the Spring he broke into the big show. It was at the spring training camp and the players were coming down into the sliding pit. I noticed a quiet, determined sort of a fellow who evidently was just being introduced to that sort of thing. He was watching keenly the way the older fellows hit the dirt and when he came he finished with a dash, hit the sand hard, his teeth clenched, and he meant business. He is rather agile than speedy and he is a corking slider.

Niehoff, on straight figures, outhits Barry. He has been rapping the ball all the season at about .280, which is slightly above his normal hitting gait. Barry is ordinarily a .240 batter and is twenty points below that on this season.

On the attack, however, Niehoff is not nearly as dangerous a man as is his rival for the job, for this reason: Barry is a pinch hitter, one of the best. I have had pitchers of the caliber of Jim Scott, Ed Walsh and Walter Johnson tell me that they would rather see Collins or Baker coming to the plate in a pinch than to see Barry up. there in a crisis of a game. And if you study Jack Barry's work year in and year out you will be surprised to discover how many blows he delivers when the runners are on the paths waiting to be driven home

We are compelled, even allowing for Barry's pinch hitting and the difference between the National League pitchers who have been weak this season, and the American League pitchers who have been up to the average, to give Niehoff a numerical advantage as an offensive player and a considerable edge at that because Barry is not running the bases, and Niehoff, with a none-base-running ball club, is netting a number of opportunities to score and speedy enough to get by with the steal stuff

Barry Great Aid in Coaching the Pitchers.

But when it comes to defensive work and inside work Barry piles up a big margin over his younger rival Niehoff has improved a lot as a fielder since he joined the Leaguers. The players tell me he is getting better right along, steadier, and that he is working beautifully with Bancroft on the pivot plays around second. The number of double plays they have made around the bases is enough to prove this statement.

However, Barry is a past master of plays around the box, and, further than that, a great student of pitchers and batters—a part of the game Niehoff as yet can know little about Barry does his work largely by knowing what batters will do with certain kinds of pitched balls and with being there to get the ball. He coaches pitchers quietly and helps them over the rough places

On a season's work, Niehoff looks much better compared with Barry than he does when they are sized up with a view to what they are liable to do in the coming contests In such a series the wiliness and the experience of the veteran must count heavily against the inexperience of Niehoff.

Barry, a .220 batter this season, figures to be a much better batter than that in the series. Niehoff, hitting .280 this season has not been to have a chance to hit much against the Red Sox pitchers. Wood ought to stand him on his head. I cannot figure how he can hit either Shore or Ruth, and his clumps of hitting hard against Leonard are small. I scarcely can think of a harder bunch of pitchers to send Niehoff against than the ones he must face I cannot figure how he will bat .150 for the series if Carrigan uses Wood twice, Leonard, Shore and Ruth

Barry will not hit Alexander hard—in fact, I do not think any of the Red Sox will hit "Alex" hard, but Barry has batted against Alexander, knows him well, and has the nerve and courage to stand up and take a crack at the speed king's offerings. He surely will hit Chalmers or Mayer, and McQuillan does not figure save as a possible finisher of some game.

On the comparative figures my final calculations show Barry 33 points better than Niehoff, adding considerably to the Red Sox total advantage.

Let us now compare the center fielders, and to-morrow we'll dope them before going on around the infield.

Mr. Moore's letter to the Crimson follows:

"Permit me to correct a false impression that might be conveyed by your article yesterday on the possible necessity of playing the football game with Yale this Fall at New Haven. You say, 'According to the Boston city ordinance the construction of wooden stands is illegal.' This would naturally make it appear that the association is trying to persuade the city authorities to violate the law by issuing a permit for such stands. As a matter of fact it is the opinion of the association that the law does not forbid a temporary wooden structure of the type we propose, and that a permit for its erection is entirely within the discretion of the authorities. The Building Commissioner takes the opposite view. While the authorities might not interfere with the construction of the stands, the association is unwilling to violate the law by proceeding with the erection without the permit which, instead, it has instead of proposing a violation of the law, we are trying to avoid it, and to secure that simple solution of the difficulty may be found.

FRED W. MOORE.
"Graduate Treasurer"

Moore Is Leading Huey.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—George W. Moore leads William H. Huey of Chicago, 50 to 40, in the first block of a 150-point match for the three-cushion title

BOSTON HAS NOT YET LOST BIG COMBAT

Harvard will not break any city ordinance if it erects temporary wooden stands in the Stadium to seat the 50,000 spectators who want to attend the Harvard-Yale game. This is the contention of Fred W. Moore, graduate treasurer of the Harvard A. A., in a statement printed in the Harvard Crimson today.

The controversy between Building Commissioner O'Hearn and the Harvard management, according to Mr. Moore, is so light Harvard men say they expect the "misunderstanding" will soon be patched up and the big game be played at the Stadium instead of shifted to Yale Bowl, as the Harvard A. A. claims will be done if Commissioner O'Hearn does not allow the wooden stands to go up.

The Harvard football committee will meet tomorrow night and a solution of the difficulty may be found.

Councilman John A. Coulhurst has come to the front and aid Harvard A. A. and the thousands of Harvard men in Boston that want the annual battle to be played in the Stadium as scheduled. He will introduce an order at the meeting of the City Council tomorrow to amend the fire ordinance so that the limits will exclude the Stadium property in Brighton.

BROWN-TRINITY IN BIG CLASH; DAY'S CARD

TODAY'S FOOTBALL CARD.

College Games.

Trinity vs. Brown at Providence.
Albright vs. Pennsylvania at Philadelphia.
Catholic Union vs. Navy at Annapolis.

School Games.

Dean Academy vs. Tufts Seconds at Franklin.
Abington at Brockton.
Milton at Lexington.
English High at Winthrop.
Lawrence at Cambridge Latin.
Salem Normal at Haverhill.
Clinton at Concord.
Chelsea at Somerville.
St. George's at Worcester North.

Brown, fresh from its victory over Rhode Island State last Saturday, will take on Trinity at Providence today. The Trinity lineup is George Brickley, the former Everett High star and student of the "Connie" Mack College of Baseball.

Just how Brickley can play football on any college eleven is hard to understand, although it is said that George protected himself by not taking a cent of cash for his work with the Athletics. At any rate Brown will not protest his standing, it is said.

Still badly mussed up and wistful after the scare last Saturday when West Virginia nearly got away with the game, Pennsylvania will clash with Albright. This same Albright team has been playing pretty "classy" football and has some seasoned men in its rushline and backfield. Bender, the big fullback, is the same old "beef" and may give the Red and Blue another tough test.

PENN'S BIG SWITCH.

One of the workings of the game which will be closely watched is the shifting of Howard Berry, the mainstay of Penn's defense, and Penn's best scoring bet, from halfback to quarterback.

Quigley, after being out with injuries for a week, may start at halfback.

One of the last Boston school teams to make its appearance on the gridiron is English High, which opens its campaign this afternoon with Winthrop High on the field of the Beach Town lads. Coach Dan O'Flaherty is having a hard time welding together a machine such as he had last Fall.

MONAGLE IS CRIPPLED.

Most of his veterans have gone and the material which has reported is none too promising. Captain Fred Monagle has been feeling none too well and a turned ankle, received one of the very first days out, has kept him back considerably. As there are no Talcotts at Winthrop this year prospects for an English High win are bright.

Handicapped by having no coach since the beginning of practice Cambridge Latin will hardly be expected to make very much of a showing against Lawrence High, which is said to have a strong line and nifty backfield.

MRS. WIGHTMAN NOW AT HER BEST

There was plenty of exciting tennis at Longwood in the third round in the women's singles open tournament; the first two rounds in the women's doubles and the opening round in the mixed doubles.

In the first event Miss Ann Sheafe and Mrs. G. W. Wightman the noted Boston players, proved the shining lights, and while the latter won it was only after the hardest sort of a match.

While Mrs. Wightman, the former national champion and runner-up this year to Miss Molla Bjurstedt, the Norwegian expert, who now holds the national title, having won it in Philadelphia in June, was the victor over Miss Sheafe in straight sets, this does not begin to tell the story of the contest. Miss Sheafe relied on her driving strokes, while her opponent was using cuts and chops, together with a very skilful exhibition of placing.

Miss Bjurstedt had little or no trouble defeating Miss Alice Thornike. The champion did not allow her opponent a single game. Today Miss Bjurstedt is picked to win over Mrs. T. H. Cubot, in fact, it is not anticipated that she will encounter any marked difficulty until the semi-final or final round checks together with a very skilful exhibition of placing.

The Sears cousins, Miss Eleanora and Miss Evelyn, are still in the running, the former being booked to play against Miss Alice Cunningham in one match and the latter having Miss Eleanor Lindley of New York, the one surviving visitor outside of Miss Bjurstedt, left in the singles.

Harvard Players Drilled Hard on Defensive Work

The faults of the Harvard players in the first game of the season last Saturday are just about corrected. Coach Haughton worked his men hard yesterday afternoon in secret practice on the faults he found in their defensive play and when the players report for practice this afternoon they are scheduled to know a lot more about defensive football.

Two changes were made in the lineup of the varsity team, Harry Dadmun going in at Cowan's place at guard and Wingate Hollins playing in the backfield in place of Captain Mahan, who spent the afternoon as a coach.

Cowan is out of the practice with a bruised leg muscle, but is expected out in a few days and will undoubtedly step back into his old job.

Gilman again worked out at end and looked especially good in that position. He is fast, a sure tackle and sees a play quickly and takes advantage of all opportunities.

In the short scrimmage held the big eleven scored but one touchdown against the seconds, but this was accounted for as most of the work was to strengthen the varsity on defensive play.

Murray Taylor, quarter on the freshman team last year, ran the seconds and made a hit with the coaches. He is quick in giving out his signals and used the best of judgment in all his plays.

Only Four Concord Regulars Are Back

CONCORD, Sept. 29.—The candidates for the Middlesex School eleven got under way when they were given a brief workout by Coach David A. Baldwin. Baldwin has only four members of last year's team to work with.

Robert Lancaster of Worcester, who played a smashing game in the backfield last Fall, is the captain, and James Lee of Boston the manager. Veterans returning, besides Lancaster, are Pratt, guard; McCouch, end, and Hobbs, halfback.

The schedule.

Oct. 6—Fitchburg Normal at Concord
Oct. 9—Volkmar at Concord.
Oct. 16—St. Mark's at Concord.
Oct. 23—Groton at Groton.
Oct. 30—Country Day at Concord.
Nov. 6—St. George' School of Newport, at Concord.

Harvard Loses Ayres.

Russell R. Ayres, captain of last year's Harvard varsity baseball team and star third baseman, will not be a member of the nine next Spring. Ayres will finish his course in midyear. Johnny Waterman, the star catcher, is also back at college, but has not decided if he will stay long enough to play baseball.

Dartmouth Attack Improves.

HANOVER, N. H., Sept. 29.—The Dartmouth eleven improves every day. The varsity showed a great attack and scored two touchdowns against the seconds in a short scrimmage.

Penn Star Is Injured.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 29.—Jimmy Dewhurst, freshman star of last season and expected to gain a place on Pennsylvania's varsity, is lost to the team indefinitely. He sustained a broken collar bone in practice.

Cadets Get New Plays.

WEST POINT, Sept. 29.—Captain Charles Daly of the Cadets gave his squad several new plays to practice and was well satisfied by the way the players took hold of the work.

Lehigh Has Quiet Session.

SOUTH BETHLEHEM, Sept. 29.—Coach Ready of Lehigh gave his varsity players an easy time, devoting most of the afternoon to the second and third teams. His object is to develop extra halfbacks and ends.

Football Games Wanted.

Millbrham A. A., corner of Chelsea seeks a game for October 2. Address Karl Hartlieser, No. 85 Carroll street, Chelsea, phone Chelsea 21122.

Columbus Wanderers want an out-of-town game for October 9. Phone B. B. Daly, Dorchester 4188-M.

TAFT'S SON GOES ON HINKEY SQUAD

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 29.—Duryea, quarterback on the Yale varsity, will be out of the game for at least three weeks as a result of a broken wrist.

Charles Taft, son of the former President and a star Eli basketball player, is the latest recruit to join the squad. He is a big fellow and will try for a place in the line.

The varsity made its best showing of the season against the scrubs in the workout yesterday. In two twelve-minute scrimmages the regulars broke through almost at will and scored two touchdowns and two drop kicks.

The men had a kicking drill under the direction of Dr. Bull, while "Pinkie" Dunbar and Talbot took the linemen out for a strenuous hour's work.

RUSH CONTINUES MAKING CHANGES

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 29.—Several of the Tigers' squad today can testify to the strenuous methods employed by Coach Rush, as at least half a dozen players are carrying bruises and more serious injuries which may keep them out of the Rutgers game Saturday. Semmes will be out two, if not three, weeks.

Rush sent the first and second elevens through the stiffest drill of the season. The backs again received a great deal of attention. Most of them are too light and Rush shifted another end, Gillespie, to half back so as to give more weight. That makes five men in all who have been shifted from the ends and tried in the backfield. The others are Haas, Eddy, Shea and Lamberton.

Charley White Will Show with Baldwin

Charley White, Chicago's sensational lightweight, will clash with Matty Baldwin of Charlestown in the feature bout of twelve rounds at the Atlas Club next Tuesday night, an exclusively announced in the AMERICAN last week.

Joe White, the South Boston middleweight, will meet "Patsy" De Lucca of the North End in the semi-final bout of eight rounds.

I am offering you one hundred styles of suitings and overcoatings, absolutely all wool and worsted, and guarantee no tailor in Boston will use the same merchandise for suit to measure under $25.00. My price, fit guaranteed or new garment made, $9.75.

Including the following:
United States Worsted Company's Blue Serge.
Globe Black Unfinished Worsted, guaranteed 14 oz.
Cheviots, Tweeds and Fancy Novelties, ends of the different pieces in my stock.
All suitings for this sale are to be three-piece suits.
Fine Black All-wool Kerseys, lustrous, leather-faced cloths, guaranteed for wear and color, made up with velvet collar, lap seams, double-stitched edges. I don't care if you are a 75 breast or 32, the price is $9.75.
Worsteds, Cheviots, Novelties, Plaid Back Coatings, a line that would make a connoisseur's heart glad, made to your order

$9.75

Ready to Wear!

It has been a hard season in the tailoring and clothing trade, and I have kept my shops going full force and turned out hundreds of garments that are all made up ready to wear.

Single Breasted Plaid Back Overcoats as low as $6.50.
Double Breasted Ulsters $8.00.
Fine Faced Black Kerseys, ready to wear out, $10.00.

Every garment is made by me in my own shops. Some of these goods came from the high-priced tailor's stock of David Low, who used them for overcoats selling as high as $45.00 and $50.00. The great portion of these goods came from a concern in Malden, Mass. After a fire the goods came to me through the insurance people. Another quantity of overcoatings came from the stock of I. Goldstein, 77 Summer St., Boston, a wholesale woolen man, whose stock I bought in its entirety some time in July.

I want the price, $9.75 for suit or overcoat in the busiest of the season, to be the cause of putting more names on my books than I ever had in a single month before. To each customer ordering a suit or overcoat I beg this favor. Examine the materials, labor, workmanship and style, and for the price charged, and remember that every dollar you send me helps me to keep my prices lower than any tailor in the country. It's volume I want, and it takes a great number of suits to make a great whole.

OUR FIRST DUTY IS TO MAINTAIN PEACE; OUR NEXT DUTY IS TO PREPARE FOR WAR

Mere Idle Protesting Is Not Enough to Keep Down Fares

The Opposition to the Proposed Increases on the Bay State System Will Avail Nothing Unless It Is Well Organized and Under Competent Leadership

IT is apparent that the cities and towns affected by the proposed increase in car fares on the Bay State Street Railway system are aroused to the situation and do not intend to permit it to go by default.

But the AMERICAN offers a suggestion to those who intend to protest against this increase of car fares. Mere idle protesting will not sufficiently avail. The opposition ought to be well organized and under competent leadership. Above all things, the cities and towns ought to be sure that their several law departments are capable of representing their interests, capable both with respect to ability and honesty.

The Public Service Commission will give the fullest opportunity for an inquiry into all the facts which ought to enter into a consideration of this question. The street railway will be represented by as able counsel as money can obtain. The people of the several cities and towns ought to be represented by counsel as able and who will devote their entire time to an investigation of the history and condition of the Bay State Street Railway in order that the commission and the public may know all the facts.

In the meantime, let the citizens of these cities and towns appreciate what this increase of car fare means and let them understand that it is the product of private ownership of a public utility, the doing by private individuals for private profit what the people ought to do for themselves; that these conditions do not prevail in Europe, where, as in Germany, more than half the cities own and operate their own street railways, and, as in England, nearly all the cities own and operate their own street railways.

Whether the Bay State Street Railway men can show that they are unable to make a reasonable profit on their investment without an increase of car fare, or whether they cannot prove this necessary, though not decisive fact, it is still the breaking down of private ownership and management of our street railways in this Commonwealth. It is high time that the serious thought of citizens should be turned toward the inevitable acquisition of these roads by the State.

Expulsion of Mr. French from Progressive State Committee Justified

THE expulsion by the Progressive State Committee of Secretary French was justified and necessary to the self-respect and integrity of the Progressive party.

It is difficult to understand upon what ground Mr. French considered he had the right, IN HONOR, to support the Republican party, particularly the McCall group of the Republican party, which is the unprogressive, reactionary element in it, while yet remaining a member of the Progressive party and an officer in that organization.

Mr. French's conduct is very different from the conduct of Senator Burbank, who enters the Republican party, not for the purpose of surrendering his principles, but in order there to make a last effort to redeem that party from the blight of its standpat leaders. Mr. Burbank has declared that only by the deliberate avowal by the coming Republican convention of the fundamental principle of direct legislation as expressed in the Initiative and Referendum will he be induced to support the Republican ticket. But even in these circumstances Mr. Burbank had the grace to resign from the Progressive organization temporarily.

Quite differently does Mr. French act. He surrenders his Progressive principles with such alacrity and with so little apology that one is tempted to believe that he never seriously had any Progressive principles at all. He knows, if he knows anything, that he has deserted to the very element in the Republican party against which the formation of the Progressive party was a protest.

The surrender of the Progressives to this group of reactionaries would turn the hands of the clock of progress in America back for many years. It would be admitting that the rebellion against standpatism is a complete failure. It would discourage the progressive elements of all parties in the country, and it would greatly increase the bravado and audacity of those agents of the special interests who are now in control of the Republican organization and who have nominated perfectly representative types of themselves in Mr. McCall and Mr. Coolidge.

Mr. French's desertion from the Progressive party is not important, but his expulsion by the Progressive Committee IS important. It proves that the Progressive organization is militant, consistent and self-respecting. It acted promptly and decisively, when the organizations of both the older parties have trifled and paltered in similar situations.

"Live Not With Thy In-Laws"

Fourth Matrimonial Commandment Is Warning Against One of Most Potent Sources of Domestic Discord

By Dorothy Dix

THIS is the fourth commandment of matrimony: THOU SHALT NOT ABIDE IN THE HOUSE WITH THY IN-LAWS, FOR THEREIN LIETH TROUBLE AND DISSENSION.

According to the statistics compiled by the New York Court of Domestic Relations, the mother-in-law is the one most potent source of domestic discord, and the first aid to divorce.

Sometimes it is the wife's mother who breaks up a home. Sometimes it is the husband's mother, but the consensus of experience shows that either lady is a trouble breeder, and that any household is due to run up the storm signal when she arrives in it.

Of course, this should not be thus. Every mother should cherish her newly acquired child as her own, and every bride and groom should love and honor their new mother. Only they don't. There seems to be some sinister psychic influence that makes the mere fact of people becoming in-laws to each other bring out all the latent meanness and cussedness in their natures as hot poultice brings out the measles.

Develops Weaknesses

Women who are tender and kind and sympathetic to all the rest of the world are guilty of incredible cruelty to their mothers-in-law and daughters-in-law. Generous women who deny themselves new hats to send flannel petticoats to the Hottentots begrudge their old mothers-in-law a bite to eat and a seat by the fireside. Noble women, who would scorn doing any other sort of underhand action, condescend to snoop and spy on their daughters-in-law and sons-in-law, and to steaming open letters and listening at keyholes.

Men who are the pink of courtesy and chivalry to all other women in the world show a brutal disregard of even the common courtesies of life to their mothers-in-law.

And so it goes, and so it always will go as long as human nature is in its present unregenerate state, for the in-law proposition crystallizes into concrete form our three most pronounced weaknesses. These are tyranny, jealousy and selfishness, and they get in their perfect work when we are brought into intimate contact with our in-laws.

Should Start Alone

It is especially important that a bride and groom should start housekeeping alone, without the presence of any third party. The first year of married life is inevitably a time of adjustment, in which there is bound to be much friction. If left to themselves, a young couple will fight their differences out to a finish. Then the bride will weep, and the bridegroom call himself a brute and they will kiss and make up and love none the less for their quarrel. But it is another story when the bride's mother is in the house and eggs the wife on to rebellion, and tells her what a persecuted martyr she is, or when the bridegroom's mother urges her son to stand firm and not let his wife henpeck him.

Many a mother-in-law since lays the axe to the foundation of a home when she feels it her duty to call her son's attention continually to his wife's faults, or when she rouses suspicion in a young wife's breast by harping on how strange it is that her husband didn't come home to dinner some night, and wondering if his pretty stenographer had anything to do with it.

Therefore, lay well to heart the fourth commandment of matrimony: THOU SHALT NOT ABIDE IN THE HOUSE WITH THY IN-LAWS, FOR THEREIN LIETH TROUBLE AND DISSENSION, for in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred domestic felicity increases in direct ratio to the distance from your in-laws.

ILLUSTRATED SONGS
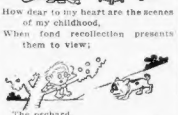
"The Old Oaken Bucket"

How dear to my heart are the scenes of my childhood,
When fond recollection presents them to view;



The orchard.

The meadow.

The deep, tangled wildwood,
And every loved spot that my infancy knew.

Misleading

The Austrians charge that the Russians are wrongfully using the red flag seems to be well grounded. Nothing in the present performance of the Russian army justifies their employment of a danger signal in advance of their troops.

Insuring His Laurels

Inasmuch as no human being can live at an altitude of 27,000 feet, Doc Cook's claim that he has ascended Mt. Everest will never be disproved.

Vindicating the Claims of Science

The New York World's story that one whale helped another to escape merely proves what scientists have long asserted, that the whale is not a cold blooded animal.

That Baby

MY mother thinks that baby's fine;
She says she couldn't do without him;
But I tell YOU if he was mine
I wouldn't make no fuss about him.
He isn't man enough to walk;
She has to sit around and hold him;
He slobbers when he tries to talk
And she don't ever even scold him.

I TOOK him for a ride today
An' by an accident I spilled him.
It didn't hurt him none—but, say,
He hollered so you'd think I'd killed him.
That's him; he always acts like sin.
He's just a reg'lar mollycoddle;
I think we ought to trade him in
An' get a 1916 model!

Note for Little Navy Men

The Galveston seawall cost a lot of money, but when a storm came along it paid for itself several hundred times over. Congressional Record, please copy.

How Are You Going to Tell?

Justice Hughes' refusal to run for the Presidency seems to be definite enough, but nobody was sure the Colonel was going to run till he said he wasn't.

A Record

That kiss that the bearded man stole from the Doc was probably the only thing that anybody ever succeeded in stealing from him.

An Open Letter to the President

Sept. 17, 1915.

The President, White House, Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. President:

Confirming my telegram of yesterday from Gardiner, Maine, which was as follows:

"As a citizen and business man, I protest against the proposed Anglo-French loan. Explicit reasons follow by letter. I am not Pro-German or Pro-English, but Pro-American."

MORRILL S. RYDER,
No. 128 South Main street, Middleboro, Mass.

We may need the money to provide adequate means of defence for our own country. The loan would tend to increase interest rates to our business men and thus retard business developments. It would tend greatly to increase the high cost of living to our citizens, in my opinion. It would be impossible to float the same as a popular loan, so, individually, my money, to a very small extent, through the banks and insurance companies, and the people's money in the aggregate to a very large extent in the same way, would be used, and we cannot make any effective protest against the same. Thus, our holdings in these companies would be adversely affected by their subscriptions in large amounts to what must be necessarily the depreciated securities of insolvent nations. A few big bankers profit, coming and going, by commissions on sales of war supplies, and on the loans which come from our own pockets to pay for the same. They get all the profits: the common people get all the losses. It would enrich a very few at the expense of the many.

As I understand, the allies are looking well after their regular export trade, also looking to us for war supplies, which they now propose to pay for by taking the money from our pockets, and when this horrible war ends, what will we do with empty factories; no foreign markets, and only depreciated Anglo-French bonds on our hands?

I protest against the Morganising of the resources of our country after the object lesson of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad.

One year ago, exchange was greatly in England's favor. No Anglo-French commission or American bankers or anyone else manifested any keen desire to relieve our situation, as far as I can ascertain. In fact, in our own importations, I was plainly told that England had the gold; that we owed her large amounts, and if we wanted the merchandise, we should have to pay the premium, which we did, although contracted for at fixed prices.

It appears to me that now some of our large financial interests try to look out for foreign countries in preference to our own.

Such loans will lead to entangling foreign alliances, which our first Virginian-born President warned us to avoid and against which I trust our latest President of the same ancestry will be equally successful.

I protest against the loan as would my forefathers, all of whom were of Colonial and most of whom were of Mayflower origin.

Yours sincerely and respectfully,

M. S. RYDER,
No. 128 South Main street, Middleboro, Mass.

Science for Workers

By Edgar Lucien Larkin

IN the Palace of Mines, at the San Francisco Fair, there is on display in profusion fine apparatus for use before classes in electricity in colleges and universities. In 1912 I wrote concerning the electricity part of the exposition that it would be up to date; in 1913 that all new discoveries to opening of the fair would be there, and in 1914 that the exposition of discoveries and uses of electricity would surpass all previous achievements.

In 1915 the fact is here. The exhibits of new things in electricity are so prophetic of greater things to come that the very foundation laws of all nature may yet be discovered. And students of electrical engineering, current manipulation and intricate laws of electro-magnetism in technical colleges of the future may well be congratulated upon these new things.

There are hundreds of new apparatus that can be put together and taken apart; but when assembling the parts students can see the actions of the new laws. Facts of electricity, as shown by the developed mechanism, by a labyrinth of coils, transformers, electro-magnetic instruments, reveal dim laws as coming nearer and nearer, like the outlines of a ship coming out of mists. And at present these are yond imagining.

How would it do to say that variations in potential will change the entire science of application of electricity to useful work? For the possibilities of the effects of variations in potential of the field by means of the alternating current are beyond all computation now, for rapidly alternating potentials will enable future engineers to make machinery at much less cost.

The very poor will be able to have electricity in humble homes for all purposes. We live in a universe of changes, and incessant variation. The sun and all the planets revolve in the electro-magnetic field of space. But this field varies potential; then variations on all planets, including our earth, are a result. But these laws are not yet fully discovered.

I saw metals behave as if alive in the varying fields around the poles of electro-magnets today. This area or field of energy in space near magnet poles is indeed wonderful and beyond all value, since work can be taken out of it by induction and conduction.

I held metals in my hands within this magic field and could feel the activities of surgings of magnetism. I must repeat, variations will be the watchword of electricity in the future.
